

HOOVER AIMS TO KEEP
ALL CAMPAIGN PLEDGESBY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1928 by Post Pub. Co.

Washington—Herbert Hoover will not ignore a single campaign pledge. He intends to get something started during his administration on every one of the promises made.

This is the consensus after several days of conferences between congressional leaders and the president-elect. The major pledges on which a start will be made at once are as follows:

First: Legislation to deal with the export surplus of agriculture.

Second: Revision of the tariff to protect American industry that is suffering from foreign competition.

Third: A commission to get the facts on the enforcement of the prohibition law.

Looking through all the campaign speeches of Mr. Hoover, it will be found that what might have been considered the paramount issues of the presidential contest are taken care of in the three provisions just outlined. Mr. Hoover assured the country that he would make a rigid inquiry into the "abuses" that had arisen in prohibition enforcement.

He espoused the protective tariff and said it was the foundation of American economic expansion. He pledged the farmers that before the next harvest he would have set up a governmental machinery for farm relief.

HERB CLEARS AIR
Within the short space of a few days Mr. Hoover has cleared the air on the major problems. The calling of an extra session in April has been restricted to farm relief and tariff legislation, so far as the initiative of the new administration is concerned, but it will be difficult to prevent congress from making the usual number of investigations and passing any other laws that might have popular support.

The effort at the moment to limit the session to tariff and farm relief is made merely to relieve the administration of responsibility for making any recommendation to the new congress beyond those two subjects. It does not mean, of course, that Mr. Hoover would disapprove acts of congress which came to him for signature on other subjects.

The president-elect is represented as desiring to go into the subject of inland waterways and other campaign pledges at the December session of congress. Many of these things will provoke controversy and probably will not be acted upon even at the December session, but Mr. Hoover's policy is to make a start. If there should be a disposition in 1929 to "look at the record," Mr. Hoover hopes that his administration will have done something on all the outstanding questions which were touched upon in the Republican national platform.

IMPRESSES CONGRESS

Although it is too early to form an estimate of the effect of Mr. Hoover's brief visit here, there is reason to believe that he has made a favorable impression on members of congress and that his business-like way of tackling problems is effective. The president-elect has a very direct way and although he is observing the Coolidge policy of silence in controversies which do not concern him or on which he has as yet inadequate information, there is already an indication that when he makes up his mind, he is positive and emphatic.

The president-elect has been seen a maximum number of members of congress and seems to be relishing his new contacts. His most delicate job, of course, is selecting a cabinet. Once this is out of the way he still will be under pressure with respect to other important appointments, and to a large extent, he hopes to leave this to department heads to handle.

HOLD 3RD CONFERENCE

Washington—(AP)—President Elect Hoover called at the White House Saturday for his third conference with President Coolidge since his return to Washington.

The president and Mr. Hoover were together for 30 minutes, after which it was announced that the president-elect had called at request of Mr. Coolidge to discuss with him the desirability of enlarging the executive offices. This topic was discussed by the president earlier in the day also with Director Lord of the budget bureau.

On leaving the White House, Mr. Hoover declined to discuss the conference. In addition to his two previous calls at the executive office, the president-elect had talked informally with Mr. Coolidge for an hour or more Friday night after dining at the White House as the president's guest.

BULLETIN

Kenosha—(AP)—Milk supplied by Kenosha-co for Chicago consumers was cut to the output of 50 farms. Benjamin Gilmore, president of the Kenosha-co branch of the Milk Producers association, said when striking farmers forced the closing of the Wanser company plant at Kansasville and the Borden company plant at Basset Saturday morning.

Chicago—(AP)—The heel of striking dairymen Saturday pressed more firmly on the source of Chicago's milk supply.

Strikers of three states, seeking $2.85 a hundredweight, instead of the $2.50 Chicago distributors are paying, have asked President-Elect Hoover to take a hand in the situation.

"In line with your policy of immediate relief for farmers," said a wire to Mr. Hoover by W. C. McQueen, president of the Pure Milk association, "our organization, composed of dairymen supplying Chicago with pure milk, requests aid in this fight for a complete settlement of the marketing situation through arbitration."

Destruction of milk continued Friday as pickets of strikers guarded receiving stations of the Borden and Bowman dairy companies while police patrolled highways to prevent recurrence of violence which resulted in one kidnapping and the dumping of thousands of pounds of milk.

The Northern Indiana Dairymen's association Friday night voted to join the striking Illinois and Wisconsin producers. The Indiana association controls about 125,000 gallons of milk daily, four-fifths of which comes to Chicago.

A band of 100 farmers, carrying weapons, kidnapped Frank Janel, Model Dairy company truck driver, near Lake Zurich, Ill., Friday night, dumped 21,600 pounds of milk, and then released him after the company agreed to pay the increased price. Loads of other dairy companies' milk were dumped.

WISCONSIN PROFESSOR

UP IN UTILITY INQUIRY

Washington—(AP)—Appearing before the federal trade commission in its investigation of the power utility industry late Friday, M. E. Glaeser, professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin, was examined regarding his textbook "Outline of Public Utility Economics," which had been mentioned in the correspondence of some utility representatives previously introduced, as favorable to the points of view held by those connected with the industry.

He said no payments had been received by him from utility interests or any other source for writing the book except the regular compensation for his work with the institute of research in land economics and public utilities, located at Northwestern university, which sponsored the publication. This was said by him to have received some support from the National Electric Light association since 1919.

Johnson Awaits Action

In Impeachment Charges

Oklahoma City—(AP)—Governor Henry S. Johnston Saturday awaited action of the state senate on five charges of impeachment voted against him by members of the state legislature in a night session that lasted until early Saturday and climaxed a hectic week of political battling.

Five additional charges brought before the house of representatives by its investigating committee, remain to be acted upon when the house reconvenes at 120 Monday afternoon.

The senate, the constituted court of impeachment, likewise was in session Saturday until Monday afternoon making impossible before then action on the house committee's request that Governor Johnston be immediately suspended from office.

The articles of impeachment voted by the house are based on the issuance of deficiency certificates to the state banking department and the state issues commission were no appropriations were made by the last legislature and upon the alleged diversion and misappropriation of funds paid to Buck Eldridge, special agent for the governor.

All carry the charge that the governor "became, was and is guilty of wilful neglect of duty, malfeasance, incompetency, corruption in office, and offenses involving moral turpitude committed by him while in office, contrary to the constitution and laws of the state of Oklahoma."

Only one of the charges voted in committee goes back to the attempted impeachment session of the legislature last winter.

Dozen Die In Wake Of Midwest Gale

Train Service Delayed
By Wreck At Kewaskum

Chicago and Northwestern trains were arriving here from 60 to 90 minutes late Saturday after 14 cars of the Northwestern railroad express train No. 126 were derailed a quarter mile south of Kewaskum early Saturday morning.

Seven cars telescoped after leaving the track and seven remained upright. Four others did not leave the track. The train had left Fond du Lac at 11:45 Friday night and was enroute to Milwaukee when the accident occurred. No one was seriously injured.

Two of the cars plunged into the Milwaukee river. Two cars pulled down the east side of a 20-foot embankment, and four others tumbled down the west side. In one of these cars was William Bender, Chicago, express messenger. He was cut and bruised but his injuries were not regarded as serious. The train was being pulled by two locomotives when the cars were derailed. The engine crew in charge of the train was B. J. Vandell, engineer, and H. A. Conner, conductor.

The cause of the derailment is not known but it was believed that something became loose on the underpart of one of the cars, falling down and catching against the ties. When the cars left the track they tore up about 3,000 feet of track and smashed into two telephone and telegraph poles, severing the wires and stopping communication. A. P. Schaefer, station agent here, put up a temporary telegraph line at 3 o'clock Saturday morning in order to report the wreck and call for assistance.

Wrecking crews and a large wrecker from Green Bay were sent to the scene early Saturday morning, according to W. B. Basing, local agent. Trains were being rerouted by way of Fond du Lac and Clyman Junction Saturday. It was expected the regular route between Fond du Lac and Milwaukee would be opened by Saturday evening, according to Mr. Basing.

Police Seek

Man Missing

Two Days

City and county authorities Saturday were confronted with the disappearance of Fred N. Calmes, 780 E. Wisconsin-ave.

Mr. Calmes, a member of the firm of F. Calmes Sons Implement Co., 741 E. Wisconsin-ave, left his home about 9 o'clock Thursday morning with the intention of collecting notes from farmers in the vicinity of Stephenville, and has not been heard of since.

A reward for information leading to the discovery of her husband's whereabouts was posted Saturday morning by Mrs. Calmes—Communication with her may be had at 107 E. Wisconsin-ave.

The aid of Sheriff F. W. Giese and about a half dozen deputies was enlisted Friday evening, but to no avail. Members of the sheriff's department, using three automobiles, toured the northern section of the county until about 4 o'clock Saturday morning. Nobody apparently has seen him or his automobile.

FEARED FOUL PLAY
Before leaving home Thursday morning, Mr. Calmes told his wife he would be back in time for dinner if he found it impossible to get over the roads. As an added precaution, he took a shovel with him.

At first his "foul" fear he might have been the victim of foul play in view of the fact that he set out to collect notes due him. One note, it was said, was for $1,500 or $1,700. Now both his family and authorities are at a loss to explain his absence, as the sheriff's men learned that Mr. Calmes had not called on any of his debtors.

Before leaving the city, he bought a pair of tire chains at the Appleton Wrecking Co., and then departed on the Mackville-rd. He left the wrecking company about 9:30, and this was the last that has been seen or heard of him. He was driving a Ford coach.

"I am afraid something dreadful has happened to my husband," said Mrs. Calmes, who appeared at the Post-Crescent Saturday morning to announce the reward. "He is a home-loving man, and has never stayed away like this before. I can't

OFFER $13,000 TO FIRM

FOR STATE PARK LAND

Madison—(AP)—The state conservation commission, in its formal meeting Friday, voted to offer the Lake Superior District power company $13,000 for the 520 acres wanted near Melpen around Copper Falls for a state park. It was made known Saturday. Efforts for a trade with the company, for state lands, have been vain.

The offer, which was made Saturday in a letter to the power company, brings to a head a controversy that has lasted since the last session of the legislature, when the conservation department and land commission, controlling the state school lands, were authorized to make a trade with the power company or buy the land for not to exceed $17,000.

Charges awaiting action by the house include one based on the governor's act in pardoning and restoring to citizenship R. D. Crosshwaite, convicted murderer and a fugitive from justice when the governor acted last month. Another deal with the allegedly unlawful expenditure of money pursuant to a contract with Kirby Fitzpatrick, employed as a special attorney for the state banking department, while another charges the governor with attempting to interfere with the functioning of a committee on investigation of legislation, judicial, executive, and other departments of state and intimidation of witnesses and prospective witnesses.

Only one of the charges voted in committee goes back to the attempted impeachment session of the legislature last winter.

NORTHERN COUNTY

ASKS SUPPORT FOR

FARMERS IN STRIKE

Wausau—(AP)—The Marathon county board of supervisors Saturday unanimously adopted a resolution urging farmers in the county not to sell milk to distributors who will ship it to Chicago. This county is one of the principal dairy counties of northern Wisconsin.

The supervisors urged every milk producer to stay by their cheese factories and creameries "which have been your mainstay for years," and not to ship milk into territory where it will hurt the cause of the southern Wisconsin dairymen.

Atlanta, Ga. — (AP) —

George Harsh, former Oglethorpe university student and scion of a wealthy Milwaukee family, was convicted by a superior court jury here Saturday of murder. The verdict carried the death penalty.

Atlanta, Ga. — (AP) — The case of George R. Harsh of Milwaukee, former student at Oglethorpe university, charged with the murder of Willard Smith during an attempt to hold up the store of which he was manager, was given to the jury in superior court at 12:22 Saturday afternoon. The jury was taken to lunch before beginning its deliberations.

Life imprisonment for Harsh, was asked of the jury by his chief counsel in declaring that the youth was legally guilty.

The state had asked for the death penalty.

"You must punish him and punish him for murder," said Ben Conyers in resuming the defense argument. "You are not asked to turn this boy loose. You are asked to return one of two verdicts and both of them have the words 'guilty of murder' written on them."

"That's the question you have confronting you. What shall be the punishment of this boy who is technically guilty for nothing but enforcement of the law. He is legally guilty. You must give him the full punishment, but not the extreme punishment because the extreme punishment means he has capacities for full responsibility for the crime and he hasn't those capacities."

6 STATES HIT,
MUCH DAMAGE
TO PROPERTYCommunication Is Restored in Stricken Areas After Friday's Storm

Chicago—(AP)—A dozen deaths Saturday marked the trail of winter's worst storm as it swept violently across the midwest Friday.

A drop in temperature accompanied the freakish weather, with rain and snow adding to the misery in stricken areas where home and buildings were demolished. Sections of Missouri, Mississippi, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio incurred the wrath of the ill-tempered elements driven by a strong wind.

In Kentucky, four were killed. A farmer, C. G. Klosser of near Georgetown, was crushed to death when his barn collapsed, and three other men were swept into the Ohio river. A woman in Mansfield, O., Mrs. Albert Stodt, was electrocuted when the storm blew a high tension wire across a telephone line over which she was talking. A third victim in Missouri was added Saturday with the death of Mrs. William Brown, fatally injured in a collapse of her home.

Communication with the stricken areas, paralyzed Friday, had been restored Saturday.

MOVES TO NORTHEAST
In several places the storm moved northward from southern Missouri, across Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, was of terrific violence, especially at Cape Gardener, Mo., near which place two small children were killed; at Maunle, Ill., where there were three deaths, and at Port Branch, Ind., where one woman was killed.

Unseasonal rains and high winds were reported over a wide area covered by the path of the principal storm, going as far south as Mississippi where one man was killed. Two men drowned in the Ohio river when the storm capsized their skiff, and another was blown from a bridge at Louisville, Ky.

A Negro also was missing in the Shelby, Miss., storm and is believed to have been buried under wreckage of the three story hardware store and Masonic lodge building which collapsed.

THREE BOUND OVER

IN THEATRE HOLDUP

Kenosha—(AP)—Three men were ordered bound over for trial in municipal court Friday afternoon, making a total of four to go on trial for the robbery of the Kenosha theatre on Dec. 18.

Those bound, over Friday are David Dotz, the rookie policeman who planned to surprise the holdup men in the net and then lost his nerve and allowed them to escape; his brother, Alvin Dotz, night janitor, who confessed that the robbery was a frameup and that he let the burglars in and then tied himself to a theater chair to carry out appearances, and James Martin, owner of a roadhouse.

Angelo Tarello, who with Martin, was charged with being a leader, as bound over a week ago. The case was the first to come under the jurisdiction of Vilas Whaley, special grand jury investigator.

Washington—(AP)—While the house was taking a day off the senate met in executive session Saturday for consideration of the nomination of Roy O. West of Chicago, as secretary of the interior. Opposition to confirmation of Mr. West was heard from Senator Norris, the Nebraska republican, who alleged himself with other independents in contending that prior connections with utility interests disqualified West as head of the interior department.

Albuquerque, N. M. — (AP) — The New Mexico Girls Welfare home was without a superintendent or physician, or a board of directors Saturday, following resignation of Miss Bertha Lips, superintendent, Dr. F. E. Frisbie, physician, and three of the five board members. The resignations came as the result of an inquiry into the death of Helen Haskell, 18-year-old inmate, which revealed that the girl died from "lack of water and an injection of daylight sleep." The other two members of the board of the home, which is a state institution, were out of the state and have made no statements.

Sacramento, Calif. — (AP) — A legislative committee Saturday set out to determine whether the acceptance of $2,000 from Amice Semple McPherson, evangelist, by Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy of the Los Angeles criminal court, warranted and form.

Surrenders

Wilfred "Mushy" Noel, suspect in the Farmers Exchange bank robbery at Green Bay, who surrendered to police in that city in response to pleas of his family.

Green Bay — (AP)—Admitting he was the informer of the bank bandits who robbed the Farmers Exchange bank of $10,000, Elan Delaney, suspended member of the Green Bay police force, was sentenced to from 15 to 20 years in the State Reformatory at Green Bay, Saturday morning.

Suddenly discarding his air of innocence which he had maintained since he was arrested Delaney went before Municipal Judge M. J. Monahan and pleaded guilty to a charge of accessory before the fact.

At the same time, Judge Monahan heard the plea of guilty of Wilfred "Mushy" Noel of Green Bay, to a charge of robbing the bank. His sentence was postponed until Thursday.

The sentencing of Noel who gave himself up to the police Saturday, will dispose of the last of the gang of four men involved in the robbery of the bank. Alvin Schumacher, pal of Noel in the actual robbery, Byron LaDuke, an accomplice, were sentenced previously.

Delaney admitted Saturday that he provided Schumacher and Noel with information concerning the operation of the bank, which was on his "beat" as a patrolman. He said he was promised $2,500 but received only $250.

MARES EXCUSES

Delaney uttered a plea for leniency, declaring he had been virtually blackmailed into the plot to rob the bank by Schumacher. He gave the latter some information about the bank, unwittingly, he said, and then Schumacher forced him to divulge some personal matters concerning Delaney's life, information about which he possessed.

The former policeman said he did not realize the seriousness of the situation until the plot had gone too far. At that point it was too late to back out, he said. On the night of the robbery Delaney telephoned the bank in a last minute effort to warn the cashier but the bank employee had already departed and he was unsuccessful in getting the cashier at his home.

Delaney's attorneys had the complete story in their hands some time ago and on their advice he did not confess to his complicity in the robbery.

In an effort to recover the rest of the money seized Noel after he gave himself up Saturday morning after returning from Los Angeles whether he had fled, Noel said he had $20,000, his share of the money in a hollow stump on a farm between Oconto and Green Bay, but it was gone when he came back for it two days later. Noel told police he thought another member of the gang had "done him crossed him."

GIVES HIMSELF UP

Six hours after he had returned from Los Angeles in company with his older brother Lawrence who injured him in the robbery of the bank, Noel walked into the police station Saturday morning and credited Chief of Police Thomas E. Hawley and announced he was ready to plead guilty to a charge of participating in the robbery. Although he is alleged to have received $20,000 as his share of the loot, police found only $24 on his person.

Voluntarily, Noel stated to have planned the robbery of the bank the night of Dec. 12 was completed. Alvin Schumacher, of Des Moines, who Noel kidnapped Thelma Noel, assistant cashier from in front of his home and forced him to open the vault which they rifled, is serving a prison sentence. Byron LaDuke, an accomplice, was paroled, and Elan Delaney, patrolman on the beat past the bank is awaiting trial as an accessory before the fact.

BROTHER VISITS HIM

Noel's parents received a letter from him in Los Angeles last week. They sent his brother to California to induce him to return and face the charges against him. Lawrence left Tuesday. Within three hours after he saw his brother, they started back, arriving in Green Bay at 8:30 Saturday morning. After a conference with other members of his family Noel went to the police station.

Senatorial Bill Would Abolish 25 State Departments

HUNT WRITES PLAN TO WIPE OUT BOARDS

Kohler's Suggestion Embodied in Message Now Before Legislature

Madison—(AP)—If the legislature passes a bill introduced Friday by Senator Walter H. Hunt, Progressive, at least 25 governmental departments and officials will be eliminated, and their functions consolidated with 25 other divisions, most of which already exist.

Senator Hunt's measure is similar to one offered two years ago by former Senator William A. Titus, Fond du Lac, which the Assembly killed after the Senate had passed it.

Senator Hunt's measure would abolish the following departments and offices:

Board of commissioners for the promotion of efficiency; legislative council; United States board of public affairs; board of conciliation; army board, superintendent of public property, committee on law reprints, state department of engineering and the office of state chief engineer, cement-purchasing commission, printing board, annuity board, public school retirement board, normal school retirement board, university retirement board, soldiers' habilitation board, dairy and food commissioner, department of markets, and the office of commissioner of markets, grain and warehouse commission, treasury agent, real estate brokers board, oil inspection department, supervisor of illuminating oils, humane agent and compensation insurance board.

SEES UP BOARDS
In addition to the offices and departments provided for in the constitution and the examining boards supported from fees which they collect, the bill provides for the following departments, many of which already exist:

State executive board, budget commissioner, department of engineering and public property, adjutant general, department of agriculture, athletic commission, banking department, civil service commission, board of control;

Conservation commission, board of health, geological and natural history survey, highway commission, industrial commission, insurance commission, library commission;

Prohibition commission, industrial commission, revisor of statutes, tax commission, board of managers of the Wisconsin Veterans Home, board of normal school regents, board of vocational education and mining school board.

The adjutant general would be given the duties of the soldiers' habilitation board.

The commissioner of agriculture would have the department of markets and the railroad commission would handle the work of the compensation insurance board. Work of the real estate brokers' license board would become work of the industrial commission.

To the revisor of statutes would fall the duties performed by the commission for promotion of uniformity of legislation.

Named by Governor
The budget commissioner would be a new office to be filled by appointment by the governor for a term of six years. He would be required to gather estimates of needs of the various departments and not later than Dec. 1 of each even-numbered year, recommend a budget which would be distributed to state officials and the legislators the first of the odd-numbered years. He would be given considerable authority in regulating affairs of department and in examining their records and would pass on each increase of salary.

The executive board would be comprised of governor, lieutenant governor, state treasurer, attorney general and superintendent of public instruction.

It would standardize all titles, salaries and wages of state employees and pass on establishment of bureaus and divisions within departments of government.

The department of engineering and public property would be under a chief engineer to be appointed by the governor, receiving $5,000 a year salary, handling all work connected with state engineering, such as the levee commission duties.

The state retirement board would be administered by the superintendent of public instruction with the state treasurer as ex officio and the annuity board's activities also would be turned over to the public instruction superintendent.

The department of agriculture, besides taking over the department of markets would handle the dairy and food commission work.

All employees of the departments abolished would become employees of the departments which take over their functions.

AIRMAIL PLANE KEPT ON GROUND FRIDAY
Cloudy weather, coupled with a rather heavy snowfall for several hours in the morning, prevented the airmail plane operating between Milwaukee and Green Bay, through Appleton, from making the trip Friday. The plane was expected to come through Saturday, however.

A landing at the local port can now be made, it was reported Saturday. A heavy snow plow cleared two long runways Thursday night.

Consequently it again will be possible to dispatch air mail out of the city. The plane has been unable to make a landing here for more than a week because of the drifted field, and mail intended for delivery by plane had to be sent out of Appleton by train. On the trip north the plane had dropped the mail intended for this city, and continued without stopping.

Fly in Stillman Plane

They plan to fly Mrs. Anne U. Stillman's plane, "The North Star," to Panama. The craft in which Thea Rasche, German aviatrix hoped to hop the Atlantic, is being made ready at Roosevelt Field, Long Island, for the flight to the canal zone with Captain O. C. Le Bouteiller, left, and Captain Lewis A. Yancey as crew. The route will cover 2400 miles and the North Star will carry 400 gallons of gas.

Leaders Watch Hoover's Experiment In New York

BY JAMES L. WEST

Washington—(AP)—Political Washington sat back Saturday to observe the working out of the rather novel experiment President-Elect Hoover is undertaking in New York state by placing direction of affairs of the Republican party there in the hands of three men.

Diametrically opposed predictions as to the outcome were made by some of those who have a flair for forecasting future events, but most political observers seemed to be agreed that this presages action along similar lines in other states.

where friction has developed and in some of the southern states where strengthening of the organizations of his party is especially desired by the president elect.

Friends and associates of Mr. Hoover confidently asserted that greater harmony among individual leaders in New York would result from the naming of H. Edmond MacHold, state chairman; Charles D. Hilles, national committee man, and former Representative William H. Hill as a sort of triumvirate in control of party machinery and especially of federal patronage.

"Others were equally as confident in their belief that the experiment would prove unsuccessful if for no other reason than that the recently elected state chairman has been given a place in the triumvirate which on the face of things appeared to be superior to that accorded the veteran national committee man.

SEE HILLES PROTEST
Mr. Hilles long has been a commanding figure in New York Republican affairs and has many wealthy and influential friends over that state. For this reason some conversant with Empire state politics predicted that he could not be put aside easily unless he himself consented to the sharing of the power he so long has wielded.

While ostensibly the creation of the committee was in the interest of harmony, the practically minded among the politicians here professed to see in it the initiation of a policy by Mr. Hoover looking to the placing of state party control into the hands of his friends.

To support this view they called attention that the third member of the committee, Mr. Hill, has equal voice with the other two although he has no official place in the party organization, state or national. He was one of the original Hoover-for-president men of New York state and early in the pre-convention campaign formed an independent organization to work for the nomination of Hoover.

Then secretary of commerce, T. H. C. Blanton, functioned throughout the presidential campaign.

understand it. If we could only get some word of him, I would feel so relieved."

The sheriff's department has not ceased its activity in attempting to locate Mr. Calmes. Inquiries are being made in all surrounding communities.

"It is strange that nobody saw him after he left Appleton," said Sheriff Giese. "Mr. Calmes, who was in the farm implement business, is well-known throughout the county and in the city, and it is hard to believe he could drop out of sight so completely."

When it was learned that he had failed to collect any of the money due him, authorities cast aside for the time being the theory that he might have met with foul play. Instead, they were inclined to hold to the opinion that he might have had an accident.

CUTS FOOT SPLITTING KINDLING FOR FIREPLACE
Cutting kindling for the fire place in his new house at 11 Bellaire-st Friday night, Edward Gamsky, sales manager for the Fox River Paper Co., cut his foot so severely he was taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital where it was necessary to amputate a toe. He will be in the hospital for about two weeks.

Mr. Gamsky and Miss Letta Fleweger, Kimberly, visited the home, which they are to occupy after their marriage, and Mr. Gamsky was cutting kindling in the basement to start a fire in the fire place when the toe slipped and caught his foot.

Earl Wate of Milwaukee is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. John Kuse of Seymour.

HIGHWAY COMMITTEE TO OPEN BIDS ON TRUCKS
Bids on two trucks and two snow plows will be opened by the highway committee at a meeting at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the courthouse. Besides action on the bids, the committee is expected to discuss further plans for snow removal on county highways. A. G. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner, and P. H. Ryan, a member of the highway committee, returned Thursday from Cleveland, O., where they attended the annual road show.

COUNTY HIGHWAY COMMITTEEMEN TO GO TO ROAD SCHOOL

State Gathering Will Be Held at Madison, Jan. 28 to Feb. 1

The entire Outagamie-co highway committee, with the exception of P. H. Ryan, and A. G. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner, is planning to attend the eighteenth annual road school of the state highway commission at Madison from Jan. 28 to Feb. 1. Members who will go to Madison are Arnold Krueger, F. R. Appleton, James Farrel and Milford Bottrell. State and local highway problems will be discussed at the meeting. Road materials will be exhibited at the capitol building and equipment and machinery will be displayed on the streets about the capitol park.

Members of highway committees are required by law to attend the road school.

REPORT LEGISLATIVE NEEDS
The program will offer one department from past years. The entire morning of the final day's session has been set aside for special committee reports on legislative needs for the next two years. Highway marking and signing, equipment for construction and maintenance and winter and summer upkeep of highways.

The first meeting will include a review of highway work in Wisconsin in 1928 by W. C. Buetow, highway engineer.

Snow removal, the chief winter problem of all county highway organizations, is to be discussed the second or "maintenance" day. Planning of detours and dust prevention methods will be heard in the afternoon. The latest methods of bridge design and construction and changes in specifications of road building will be discussed to the school at the third day's session.

DR. BIRGE TO SPEAK
Dr. E. A. Birge, president emeritus of the University of Wisconsin, is scheduled to give an illustrated address on the only topic foreign to the schools, "Wisconsin Lakes and Fish."

Results of an aerial survey of traffic made recently in Maryland will be described by E. F. Bean, state geologist, on the morning of the fourth day and in the afternoon Mr. Buetow will outline the 1929 program of the commission. The annual road school dinner will be Thursday night.

The meeting of the county highway commissions' association Friday morning will conclude the session.

STATE LEGIONS IN MEMBERSHIP DERBY

Departments Take Names of Kentucky Race Winners for Contest

A national membership campaign in which the state departments in the American legion are assigned the names of horses which won the Kentucky Derby in past years started on Jan. 2 and will close May 18, according to word received here by officials of Oney Johnston post.

The Wisconsin entry in the race is Day Star winner of the derby back in 1878 "when horses were horses" as the legion notice proclaims. A checkup a few days ago showed the Badger entry running in sixteenth place in the race but with a good chance of crashing through to a lead.

Practically every post in the state is rushing its membership drive to completion. The Ninth district of which Oney Johnston post is a member is in third place in the state race, while the local post leads the larger cities in the district in total renewals to date.

COMMITTEE FAILS TO NAME COUNTY AGENT

No successor to R. A. Amundson, county agent, who recently resigned to accept a position with the state, was appointed by the agricultural committee which met Friday afternoon at the courthouse. Three or four applications were considered, but it was decided to conduct further inquiries before a final decision will be made. Another meeting will be held in about two weeks, although the exact date has not as yet been fixed. Mr. Amundson will give up his studies here about the last of the month.

The title might be "What's wrong with this picture?" because this is one of the rare photographs of President-elect Hoover wearing a single-breasted coat. The picture shows the United States, next president as he called on President Coolidge upon his return from Latin America.

Keep Snow Away From Fire Plugs, Chief Says

Residents of the city Saturday were urged by George P. McGillan, chief of the fire department, not to pile snow about fire hydrants.

"Recent calls about the city have proved to us that many hydrants are surrounded by banks of snow five and six feet high, and in a few cases the hydrants are even hidden from sight," he said. "Such a condition not only hampers the work of the fire department, but it adds the danger property is exposed to when it is caught by fire because of the valuable minutes lost by the firemen in making connections with the water supply."

He asked that particular care be taken to keep the space surrounding hydrants free of snow. Employees of the water department also are doing their best to keep the hydrants accessible, but cooperation on the part of property owners will help the work immeasurably, according to the chief.

"The situation has become particularly acute this winter as a result of the heavy snow falls experienced within the last two weeks," Chief McGillan said. "I realize that it has only been because of thoughtlessness on the part of citizens that some hydrants have been covered with snow, and I feel sure that when they realize the danger involved, they will be glad to cooperate."

RETAILERS HEAR REPORT ON LIGHTS

Will Bring Street Lighting Expert Here for Survey of Avenue

A special meeting of the retail committee investigating the possibility of an improved type of street lighting system for College-ave, was held Saturday morning at the chamber of commerce. A representative of a large electrical manufacturing company was here and informed the committee on possible changes in the present system.

He had come to Appleton Friday on business and was asked to attend the meeting by Mayor A. C. Rule. Questions now are to have a street lighting expert come here and survey the needs of the avenue together with the possibilities of improving the present system at a minimum of cost.

Members of the special committee will report on their activities at a meeting of the retail division Monday morning at chamber offices. The meeting Monday is scheduled to begin at 9:30 and is the first of a series scheduled for the first and third Mondays of each month.

MENASHA MAYOR HASN'T CALLED BUS MEETING

No date has been set for the special meeting of the Menasha common council at which mayors and presidents of cities and villages in the Fox river valley will be present, according to Mayor A. C. Rule of Appleton, Saturday morning. The date for the meeting at which it is hoped to solve the bus fee question is to be called by Mayor H. H. Held, Menasha, and probably will be set for some time early next week, Mayor Rule stated.

C. OF C. COMMITTEE POSTPONES MEETING
The membership committee of the chamber of commerce, which is studying methods of obtaining members and means of financing chamber of commerce, will meet Monday morning at chamber offices. The meeting was originally scheduled for Friday afternoon but postponed because of inability of members to be present. Members of the committee are F. N. Belanger, H. L. Davis and William Falatic.

CORBETT TO ATTEND SECRETARY MEETING

Mid-winter Conference of State Organization Will Be Held at Milwaukee

Included in the business scheduled for transaction is plans for organization of the Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce. The meeting, which will start at noon on Jan. 22, probably will last the entire day, as an attempt will be made to finish up all business to permit the secretaries to attend the meeting at which organization of a state association will be considered.

The program for the secretaries meeting is as follows:

1. Organization of State Chamber of Commerce.
2. National school.
3. Credit bureau service.
4. Industrial development.
5. Community advertising.
6. How to secure better interest and cooperation from the retail, industrial and professional divisions of a chamber of commerce.

12. Discussion.

DETERMINE WINNER IN PLAY CONTEST

The district winner of the Home Talent Play tournament was to be determined Saturday afternoon when the victorious teams of Outagamie, Winnebago, and Waupaca met in the final district contest at Roosevelt Junior High school. The contest started at 1 o'clock.

The first place group will compete in the semi-finals with the Fond du Lac district at Fond du Lac Jan. 28, and the winner of that district will participate in the finals at Madison early in February.

The Badger Parent Teachers' association represented this county. The Algoma Community club won the Winnebago contest, and Peterson's Mill Community club represented Waupaca-co.

SNOW AND COLDER IS SUNDAY PREDICTION

Snow flurries and colder weather is predicted for this vicinity for the next 24 hours. Cloudy weather is prevailing over the entire mid-west, and during the past 12 hours, heavy snows fell in the vicinity of Milwaukee and other southern Wisconsin cities.

A moderate cold wave swept into this vicinity Friday night and by 6 o'clock Saturday morning the mercury registered four degrees below zero. At 12 o'clock Saturday noon, the thermometer stood three degrees above zero. Winds continue to blow from the northwest and west.

START REMOVING SNOW ON CITY PARKING LOT

Removal of snow on the parking lot at the southwest corner of N. Oshoda and Washington-sts was started Saturday morning by street department employees. The snow loader which has been in operation on streets in the business district the last two weeks was put into use on the lot.

Snow removal work also was undertaken on the Midway. A heavy layer of snow had been packed down on the pavement here, and a plow was brought into use to loosen the covering.

Unusual Plaster Effects In Walls of Model Home

Colored Plaster In Many Textures Used In Post-Crescent Home

We plan to speak this week mostly about plaster and tile floors. We intend to mention other things such as the beautiful Kohler bathroom and kitchen fixtures and other quite numerous articles which possess either great merit or real beauty. We cannot touch all at this time, so will do the best we can with the things most apparent and leave the others for review at a later moment. It is unnecessary to mention here or anywhere else who has done the plastering in the Model Home. For weeks—many weeks—the name of Robt. J. Studer has been held before Post-Crescent readers as the artist who would be responsible for its beautiful walls. They were told, too, that the products of the California Stucco Products Co., were to be used by Mr. Studer upon these walls. The plastering is now practically completed and while naturally it does not look as attractive as it will when floors and windows are finished, curtains draped and furnishings installed, it is, nevertheless, beautiful, refined and delicately unique. Something a bit unusual has been accomplished here and a precedent set in this instance which many will follow.

It was practically ready for the finishing. A handsome fireplace graced one side of this beautiful room and so on into the dining room, the library, kitchen and dining alcove—all are taking the appearance at semi-completion. Master workmanship with colored plaster and unique textures is everywhere to be found. As one goes through the Model Home from time to time he becomes conscious of objects about which he has made no mention, or which, if mentioned at all have not been described as fully as merited. Had Architect Earl F. Miller been describing our Model Home, undoubtedly features we seem to have neglected would have been fully described, for an architect sees with different eyes from those of the average newspaper reader, in whose place we have striven to put ourselves while writing this copy.

There is no doubt, however, of the value of an architect to the average home-builder. In order to get the right effect from any construction one must be able to visualize the various possibilities in stone and stucco and plaster. This the untrained mind cannot do. The Model Home today is no more than an accomplished dream—a print from the same picture which entered Architect Miller's mind more than six months ago.

Gas Furnace Removes Work From Heating

Gas, the most modern of heating fuels, is being used to heat the Model Home which the Post-Crescent is building on E. Opechee-st. and although windows have not been installed and these openings are only protected by thin cloth, during the recent severe cold weather, a temperature almost too warm for comfort has been easily maintained.

Gas is the only clean fuel. It has come into its own through the development of heating plants which handle it in a safe, efficient manner. From no other fuel can the results obtained that are obtained through use of gas.

The gas heating unit used in the Model Home is made by the L. J. Mueller Furnace Co. and approved by the American Gas Association's testing laboratories. It is entirely an automatic heater, requiring absolutely no effort to control except the winding of the clock for the thermostat.

As the gas is supplied through a pipe line direct from the gas works there is no dirt and no incident to the delivery or storage of the fuel.

Gas is dependable. "More than 100 years of uninterrupted public service," is the slogan of one gas company, and numerous other companies can make a similar claim for the entire time that has elapsed since gas manufacture was started.

Blizzards and coal shortage have no terror for the householder using gas. The labor and care of tending the furnace are eliminated since the gas company assumes the duty of firing day and night, while automatic devices control the boiler so that it is placed in operation in the fall and needs no other attention until it is shut down in spring.

Thermostatic safety pilots prevent the main gas supply from being turned on if for any reason the pilot light is accidentally extinguished. Steam boilers are also equipped with a device that automatically shuts off the gas if the water in the boiler drops to a low level. These devices all go much further toward making the operation of the boiler not only automatic, but safe in every respect.

One of the most comfortable releases from routine labor as well as routine attention to detail is that afforded by gas heat.

This type of fueling is now so perfected as to make possible the entire heating of a small or large home with no more work involved than is entailed in the lighting of a match to a gas range in the kitchen.

Gas heating boilers one can safely say have now become so perfected that there is no danger of inefficiency in any form. They are well protected in every way. One device, for instance, eliminates the chance of gas flowing through the intake pipe unless the pilot light is lit.

NO ASHES TO SHOVEL

Imagine the joys of a heating system that leaves the basement spotlessly clean; that does away forever with shoveling coal into its maw and shoveling out barrels of ashes every winter; that maintains an absolutely even temperature in the house, whatever the weather conditions may be outside; that eliminates rising in a chilly house in the morning or retiring at night, chilled and uncomfortable because one sat up too long after the fire had been banked.

This regulation of temperature is affected by thermostatic control. This thermostat may be set for any temperature; sixty-eight if one follows the advice of professional hygienists, or seventy-two if one follows the average preference; and the heat of the house is governed by this temperature. It regulates automatically how much fuel shall flow into the boiler. If the temperature of the house is what the thermostat reads that it should be, the gas stops flowing until the temperature of the house drops below that point. Then this pilot light starts its work again, lights the gas, and the heat comes on in the boiler.

A family may leave the house for a whole day and evening, or for a whole week of days and nights, and find when it returns that the house has been kept at the stipulated temperature.

Where a gas boiler is installed it is connected with the heating plant already in the house, so that the only expense is the installation and connecting of the gas boiler.

Naturally, in the installation of a gas system, the radiation of the house must be carefully considered. Also, the insulation, if there is any, and the window surfaces.

It has been estimated after long and careful experimentation that a house if amply insulated can be heated with gas for about the same money that the same house, not insulated, can be heated with coal.

At any rate, one can be certain that if the boiler rating is correct, the radiation ample, the house well built, the cost for gas heating will not be very much more than the cost for coal heating.

Naturally, too, one expects to pay a little more for any convenience which offers so much in the way of de luxe comfort.

Considering that with gas there is no work involved, no worry, no fluctuating temperature, no dirt, one adds the difference in cost in return for "favors afforded." Then, too, in homes where a man is hired to care for the boiler, his wages are eliminated with the installation of the gas boiler.

Gas may be used as a fuel with warm air system, hot water, vapor, or steam.

200 Homes In Appleton Prove Integrity and Ability of Hoepplers

More than 200 substantial well constructed homes in Appleton, built in the last 22 years, attest to the integrity and the ability of Fred Hoeppler Sons, contractors and builders, who are doing the carpenter work at the Appleton Post-Crescent Model home on Opechee-st.

This company was entrusted with the carpenter work at this home because of its reputation for high grade workmanship and thorough knowledge of the correct principles of home building. And the work thus far performed at the house bears out this reputation.

Work on the interior finish of the home starts next Monday and it probably will be completed in five or six weeks.

The four Hoeppler boys, Paul, Herman, Fred and Ernest, went into the building business with their father way back in 1906 and until about eight years ago the father, Fred Hoeppler, Sr., was the employer. Then the boys started for themselves, organizing the Fred Hoeppler Sons company.

In the 22 years they have been in the building business they have constructed at least ten new homes a year, making a total of more than 200 in that period. Many of these homes are of the more expensive type and each year the demand for their services to build the better class of homes is growing.

It would be impossible to list all the homes these men have built but just a few of their contracts in recent years will indicate the type of their work. Included among these contracts are the homes of G. E. Buchanan, J. R. Whitman, Dr. L. H. Moore, Neil Duffy, Elmer Jennings, H. A. Cloudman, A. H. Wickes, Paul Seaton and Claude Snyder in Appleton, and they now are building a large addition to the splendid home of Ernest Mahler at Neenah.

The Hoeppler "boys" have seen many interesting and important changes in the building trades since they started in the carpentry business. In the early days when wood of excellent quality was plentiful and easy to obtain it was much less difficult to build a lasting home than in these days of constantly growing scarcity of high grade lumber.

The huge, clumsy houses of a quarter century ago have given place to cozy well designed homes of today and every year people are paying more and more attention to their design and the arrangement of the houses in which they live. The Hoepplers have kept pace with the changing times and tendencies and many a home builder has found their advice in home planning a real God-send.

The Hoepplers have endeavored as much as is in their power to spread their work over the 12 months of the year instead of concentrating it all during the summer, thereby giving their carpenters year around employment. Twenty-two men now are on their payroll as compared with 25 to 27 during the "peak" period of the summer, while just a few years ago it was quite the usual thing for a carpenter contractor to carry more than just a few men during the winter, vastly augmenting his crew in the spring when "work opened up."

The builders of the model home are so convinced that the "rough" work of the carpenters, which includes the partitions and the roof and other construction of that type, will never cause them worry. This work now is covered up by lath and plaster where it cannot be touched without great expense and that is all the more reason why it must be well done, solid and substantial to stand any stress to which it might be subjected.

The Hoepplers not only have learned a great deal from their long experience but they have always been students of the building business and they incorporate into their work the latest and most practical practices, assuring the home owner a freedom from worry that makes home owning a pleasure.

How to Reach the Post-Crescent Home

The Post-Crescent's Model Home is located on E. Opechee-st. Autoists can reach the property by turning to the right off E. Pacific-st. at the point where Highway 41 turns to the left. The lot is a block south of the corner of E. Pacific and N. Leminwah-sts, or follow street car line to entrance of Riverside Cemetery, turning right on Owalassa-st. The rear entrance to lot is one block south on Owalassa-st.

Wash Outside Of Windows From Inside Of House

"With all the labor saving devices that have been developed for the home," asserts A. D. Cook, of the General Supply Co., Fond du Lac, Wis., Fenestra dealers, "it is doubtful if anyone ever anticipated the reduction of house work that has been brought about by steel casement windows such as are being used in the Post-Crescent Model Home."

"First of all, Fenestra steel casements are washed entirely from inside the house. The swing-leaf, when opened, is held by extension hinges at a distance of five inches from the wall, and it is child's play to reach out through this opening and clean the outside of the glass. This improvement certainly means that the days are gone forever when win-

EXTEND TIME FOR PAYING CITY TAXES

Property Owners Given Until March 1 to Pay Bills to Neenah

Neenah—The time for paying taxes has been extended to March 1 on resolution adopted by the city council at the Tuesday evening meeting at the city hall. Upon recommendation of the finance committee at a meeting in December, it was decided to discontinue the habit of extending the collection of taxes and to make all payments payable by Feb. 1. Mayor Sande, in addressing the council on the matter, stated that this year has been an exception. Several mills and factories have been closed for weeks at a time, there has been much illness during the flu epidemic and factories had been working short hours which was a handicap to many people.

"Those who have already paid their taxes under the decision of the finance committee, I feel sure will be fair minded enough to understand that if we now extend the time for paying taxes it is for those who are handicapped and found it impossible to pay at this time." The resolution to extend the time was adopted unanimously. Extension of time for paying special assessments for opening streets, for the city of Neenah, was also granted. The time of the designated at a future meeting of the council.

The special assessment made for opening these streets caused a lengthy discussion by property owners and the council. It sifted down to the fact that the property owners in several cases did not quite understand what the assessment was made for and that to better inform them a record of the condemnation proceedings will be sent to each one.

A communication from the Wisconsin-Michigan Power and Light company, which was published in the Post-Crescent, relative to discontinuance of bus service on March 15, was read and discussed. The communication was placed on file. Mayor Sande stated that Neenah had been reluctant in taking any part in the bus controversy on account of the sister city, but now it is working to help the people and the manufacturer, the former not being able to go to and from their work, which in turn works a hardship upon the mill owner and employer. The bus company has paid $1,000 to the city for five buses which has been placed to its credit. He stated that a conference was to be held soon by the mayors and other city officials of the Fox River valley cities and that this city should be represented. "If the Wisconsin-Michigan company does go out, can we find someone who will be willing to spend $150,000 for equipment and give us the service we are now getting?" he wanted to know.

Alderman Rasmussen stated the city must have transportation service and cannot go back 40 years to the train to get from one city to the other. Alderman Martens said the city must have service even though it has to collect practically nothing for a license.

The mayor read statistics showing that Neenah and Janesville are charging much more than any other city in the state for such licenses, most of which were between $15 and $25 and in many cases there were no licenses charged. He authorized the council to send behind any representative to be sent to the conference. On motion Mayor Sande, Clerk Zemlock and Attorney Spengler were designated to attend the conference.

New railway crossing light signals which flash a red light is to be installed by the Soo line at the Wisconsin-Michigan crossing. Washington, Caroline, Sherry and Lakoski crossings. The signals operate 24 hours a day, under supervision of a man in a tower during the day and automatically during the evening and night. The new system, which will cost the railway company approximately $8,000, was authorized by a unanimous vote. Railroad companies were ordered to remove some of the ice from their grade crossings.

The business session will be in charge of Peter J. Bylow, president, while the supper will be in charge of a committee composed of A. M. Haskins, Harold Howman, Marvin Hansen, K. G. Before modern transportation, droves of geese and turkeys would be driven along the roads to market; the geese first made to waddle through tar and then through sand to harden and protect their feet.

Freckles And His Friends by Blosser

YOUNG America's favorite comic strip. Millions of youngsters would sooner go without their dinner than miss a daily installment of "Freckles and His Friends."

Merrill Blosser, creator of "Freckles and His Friends," goes straight to the heart of the youngsters, because he pictures kids as they really are—not as dime novel heroes.

WATERWAY DEVELOPMENTS

News dispatches from Washington picture Mr. Hoover as being deeply interested in Mid-west waterway development on an extensive scale. There is really nothing new in Mr. Hoover's interest in waterway enterprises, for he has long given his approval to such projects in principle and in fact. One of the most logical reasons for Mid-continent preference of Hoover for president was his well-known friendliness toward the expansion of water transportation and his demonstrated engineering ability.

In this respect Mr. Hoover, by reason of his wide experience and acknowledged talents, occupied a class by himself. His service to those portions of the country which will benefit by waterway development were potentially very valuable. It is probably not an over-statement to say that Mr. Hoover can and will do more to promote inland water transportation than anyone else. It is said he has four major undertakings in mind. The first, of course, is the St. Lawrence seaway connecting the Great lakes with the Atlantic ocean. The second is the so-called lakes-to-the-gulf waterway, the third is the improvement of the Ohio river from Pittsburgh down, and the fourth covers the upper Mississippi river.

The St. Lawrence seaway is of greater economic importance to the country than all of the other projects combined, and will always be so. The main efforts, therefore, should and doubtless will be concentrated on pushing the negotiations with Canada through to a final conclusion so that construction may be authorized at the earliest possible moment. Chicago will press for the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway, even in advance of the St. Lawrence seaway, but that is politics and has no relation to the economic requirements of the country and the respective merits of the two enterprises.

Further improvement of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers will be warranted by future traffic, but it probably will be many years before either is used to anything like its capacity. However, it is true that all of these projects are in a sense related. They all deal with cheaper transportation facilities for the Mid-continent. They all combine to place it in nearer and cheaper contact with markets both at home and abroad. They help to overcome the handicaps to which the Central west has been placed by the building of the Panama canal.

It will be logical for Mr. Hoover to give major stress to these great works in order to make them an administration achievement. Doubtless, they will be opposed by the railroads, but here as in all instances where the railroads antagonize waterway development, they will be acting without a proper regard for either their own interests or the interests of the country as a whole. Waterway development will not hurt the railroads. On the contrary, it will give them more business and bring them increased profits.

RENOUNCING POISON GAS

In Germany some well-meaning people are now starting a movement to have the great powers sign a treaty renouncing the use of poison gas in time of war.

Surely there can't be any great harm in such a scheme. The thing ought to be quite easy to put over. High-sounding treaties seem to be popular, and this one ought to be high-sounding enough for anybody.

Of course, such a treaty wouldn't have the slightest effect. If war should come every nation involved would begin to use all the poison gas it could lay its hands on, no matter how many treaties it had signed.

But it would make a nice treaty, for all that.

CORPORATION ETHICS

John D. Rockefeller, Sr., has entered into the fight for control of Standard Oil of Indiana. It is said that he has taken the side of his son in the latter's attempt to oust Col. Robert W. Stewart as chairman of its board of directors. Great forces are at work in New York and throughout the country to control this corporation. The name and prestige of Rockefeller are largely a matter of its place in Standard Oil. Its position in the world of finance and industry is, therefore, at stake, as well as the moral standing of Standard Oil company of Indiana.

It remains to be seen how much power Mr. Rockefeller, Sr., still wields in Wall street and in Standard Oil ramifications. The ethics of the controversy are entirely on the side of the Rockefeller family. Regardless of how competent an executive Col. Stewart may be or of the profits he may be able to earn for Standard Oil, he has brought discredit to it and himself by his connection with the Continental Trading company. If stockholders are to approve policies and acts such as the record has disclosed in this case, then there should be no limit to the extent to which corporations may go in conspiracy against the public, in covering up shady transactions and the exploitation of the nation through political favoritism. Principles of the very greatest importance are involved and cannot be obscured by eulogizing Col. Stewart's masterful executive abilities.

HEROISM

It would be a story heart that did not bleed at the story of the great sacrifice made on the altar of friendship by a nameless parton of a St. Louis speakeasy recently.

This man was standing at the bar and had just laid two dollars on the counter to pay for his drinks when federal officers entered. They asked him what the money was for. The patron thought fast.

"I was just buying sandwiches," he explained.

The officers, in surprise, asked if he bought two dollars' worth at a time. He said that he did—it was a peculiarity of his, but he liked his sandwiches in bulk. So the bartender gave him two dollars' worth of sandwiches, and he manfully struggled to eat them, while the officers looked on.

After he had downed 13 the man gave up. But his sacrifice was in vain. The officers searched the place, found some whiskey and arrested the proprietor anyhow.

But, surely, no man can do more for a friend than eat 13 sandwiches that he doesn't want.

ACCIDENTS AND DRIVERS

Very few traffic accidents are caused by defective mechanisms. Most of them are due to the driver.

This is brought out in a survey by the National Safety Council, just made public. The survey shows that only about 10 per cent of all traffic accidents can be blamed on physical and mechanical causes—including defects in the road or inclement weather. The rest are laid at the door of the motorist himself.

Automobiles have improved marvelously in the last decade or so, but the driver has remained stationary. The modern automobile is a model of mechanical perfection. It will travel as fast as anybody wants it to. It will stop quickly, if handled right. Its intricate parts seldom give way under strain.

But the driver is right where he always was. Until he learns caution, common sense and consideration for the rights of others, we will continue to have a disgracefully high list of traffic casualties.

The Remedy is Worse Than the Malady

"Yes, the one we're in now is too small. Our son has decided he wants to learn to play a slide trombone."

"Have you been bitten by a snake," asked the physician.

"You answer my question first."

OUR RAPID AGE

"Is this a genuine antique?"
"It is, madam," replied the dealer.

"Why, here's a mark that indicates it was made less than twenty-five years ago."

"Oh—er—exactly. You must remember, madam, that we are living in a very rapid age. It doesn't take nearly as long to make an antique as it used to."

DON'T TELL THE DOCTOR

Readers have not commented on it but I beg to call attention to the pleasing fact that you seldom find in this column the maddening suggestion to "consult a competent physician."

"I used to run that advice once or twice a day quite regularly but it seemed that we have a lot of incompetent physicians among our readers and they got pretty mad about it and made considerable trouble for me by complaining about unfair discrimination. Besides that, so far as I could observe, the competent physicians who gained in practice if not in prestige through this annoying habit of mine didn't thank me particularly for my pains. So I wish you would notice as you give the column the up and down, how rarely I recommend this course to a correspondent nowadays."

For that matter, there are not enough competent physicians in the country to go around, so doubtless a good many readers must inevitably consult incompetent ones if they ever do get desperate enough to require medical advice. For the benefit of these less fortunate readers I wish to offer a few hints to patients. My object is two-fold; first, I want to help you to get your money's worth when you do consult a physician; and second, I want to make a little less smooth the way of the far too successful quack.

On your way to the doctor's office, or while you are cooling your heels in his waiting room, just run over your sins in your mind and make up a good story to tell the doctor. You know you don't want to go in there when your turn comes and sit like an idiot waiting for your mind to say "tell what's on your mind?" You should be all prepared to file your complaint, that is, to tell him right off the bat what you are complaining of, what brings you to the doctor, your present symptoms, worries or suspicions.

Now be very careful here! You must never slip into the quack's hands, you know. It all depends on how you present your complaint to the doctor. If he is a quack in a quack's clothing, it would be a fatal mistake for you to tell the doctor you've got a bad cold, or the flu, or that you guess you have a touch of rheumatism, or that you are bilious, or that your nerves are all shot, or that you have anemia, or that your old neuritis is coming back on you, or that you don't digest your food, or that your kidneys are bothering you, or that your heart is weak, or anything like that. If he's a quack that fixes it for him so he doesn't have to think any more about the case at all—he knows you are a glib one: if he is a gentleman really, he will stop you and make you answer his questions. But if he has to do that he will tacitly list you as a Dumb Dora or a Dumb John.

Don't try to present your doctor with a ready-made diagnosis. On the other hand, don't be an impudent nincompoop and attempt any funny answers if he puts questions. The proper way to state your complaint is in your own words. What is it you feel nervous or fear? What sensation are you complaining about?

Try to explain it or give it a name. Just tell the doctor you have a dull ache here—point out the place—or a sudden loss of sight since such and such time, or whatever it may be that has brought you to the consultation. Don't try to impress him with your medical wisdom. Be yourself! Tell him your symptoms, and leave it to the doctor to explain them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What No More Lies?

Please advise me how to teach the essential facts of sex in life to children (both boys and girls) ranging in age from three to nine years.

—Mrs. R. F. J.

ANS: You may purchase from the government for five cents a pamphlet called "The Wonderful Story of Life," which gives you an excellent outline of the way to teach the children. This is sold by the Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. Don't forget the nickel if you write for it.

Rounding Out

Please advise me by return mail if it is possible to round out the figure after nursing a baby a year. Madam Willing of New Hickville promises to do this. Her treatment costs ten dollars and consists of 300 tablets.—(D. L. V.)

ANS:—If taxation were fairly apportioned Madame Willing's "Sap-birg" would pay into the government that winks at the game about 95.5 per cent of the proceeds as tax on unjust profits. The grafters probably take little more than half of her gross receipts now. The only way to restore firmness and roundness is by suitable exercise and perhaps special dieting to put on weight.

Trench Mouth

Some time ago you gave a remedy for trench mouth. I have forgotten what it was, and now my daughter is suffering with trench mouth and seems to get no relief from the treatment she has had.—(Mrs. H. Y.)

ANS:—It was the remedy advocated by Dr. J. C. Bloodgood in his oral clinic, sodium per-borate. Make a paste of it with a little water, and spread the paste upon the sores on gums, or in mouth or throat. Allow this to remain five minutes, or more, daily. Then, besides, make a weaker solution of the per-borate in water—say a tablespoonful in a pint of water, to use as mouthwash and gargle many times daily.

Polypus

Kindly tell me the symptoms of polypus growth in the nose.

ANS:—There are no particular symptoms, any obstruction of either side of the nose, constant or intermittent, should warrant examination by the physician, who will determine what is the matter.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT C. PLUMMER

Washington—Washingtonians, despite the fact they daily are thrown in contact with the highest officials of the nation, always are thrilled when one appears without warning in their midst.

A day or so after the Hoover party had returned to the national capital from South America, the wife of the President-elect appeared unannounced one morning at one of the society musicales. This act of Mrs. Hoover was not extraordinary. As wife of the secretary of commerce she frequently attended such functions.

On this occasion, however, there was a commotion as she entered the crowded ballroom where the concert was given. All heads were turned to get a glimpse of the future first lady and there was much whispering.

Two former mistresses of the White House—Mrs. William Howard Taft and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson—also were present. Mrs. Edward E. Gann, the official hostess for vice-President-elect Senator Curtis, also was there.

But it was Mrs. Hoover who attracted all eyes.

A PHOTOGRAPHER JOKES

President Coolidge's ride on an ox cart at Sapelo island and his conversation with Howard Coffin while aboard are still referred to around the capital.

The President, after persuasion by his host, consented to stage the show for the benefit of the photographers and their men. They had posted themselves along where the vehicle would pass.

On photographer, a bit farther up the road than his colleagues, was the first to see the ox cart bearing the chief executive. The sight of Mr. Coolidge seated thereon, with his 10-gallon hat pulled far down on his head, the familiar mackinaw drawn snugly about him and the gun clenched firmly in his hands was too much. Although he had seen many peculiar situations before and recorded them with his camera, he was unable to contain himself. Turning to his colleagues, he shouted:

"Boys, you can believe it or not, but here comes our President!"

JOB FOR MRS. PINCHOT

There's a new reporter on capitol hill.

Until the other day her identity was shrouded in mystery. Day after day she was seen in the press galleries, visiting various state office and engaging the prominent in conversation. No one troubled to inquire who she was. She didn't volunteer the information.

The secret finally was out. She was Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the former governor of Pennsylvania and she will write a series of articles on the national situation.

And all the while, the mechanics of daily life go on. The ice man comes and the postman comes and the milkman and the breadman come. And they slip by as they come—automatic figures, who give the impersonal touch of life's standardized elements. They are part of this disorganized ballet... giving it a daily rhythm as a clock might tick off time while all around was unmitigated chaos.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
ASHTORETH ASHE is having the most exciting adventure of her life in a little house on top of a mountain in tropical Dominica.

Ashareth is a stenographer from Boston. The owner of the house is HOLLIS HART, her multi-millionaire employer. They have met by accident in Dominica, a little island in the West Indies.

Ashareth, who has been ill, is taking a cruise. Hart has stopped off, en route to South America and found the place so charming that he has taken a house and means to stay a while. They are delighted to see each other. And Ashareth purposely misses the boat in order to stay on the island. She pretends, of course, that it was an accident. And Mr. Hart seems not to suspect her little ruse.

Finally he discovers her boat has sailed. There is nothing left but to wait for the next boat.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXVIII

"Two lumps, Holly"

Ashareth sat at the breakfast table and tried to sound wisely. She was wearing Hollis' pajamas and looking happy.

Now, women, on masse, are not built for pajamas, any more than men are built for nightgowns. But Ashareth was one of those tall, slim girls, with long legs. Lean from knee to hip. And that, of course, makes a difference. As a matter of fact, she never looked better in her life.

They were orchid satin pajamas. With a military neck and a Russian sash.

Over them she wore a silk dressing gown of Roman striped effect. Behind each ear she had pinned a scarlet hibiscus, red as her laughing lips.

Her own clothes were drying on the bushes. And Ashareth was wishing it would rain, so that she could wear the pajamas all day.

"A week tomorrow," remarked Hollis and salted his paw paw appetitously. "The boat is coming in early, Orchid."

For six days these two lived in the little house on the top of the mountain. And every day the sun had shone. And every night the stars had twinkled and bathed the garden in silver light.

"And now," he said, "you are going away."

Ashareth bent her head above her plate. And wondered what a girl should do in such a situation. Hollis Hart loved her. That is, he was crazy about her. She knew that it had been awfully difficult for him—being so dreadfully respectful—

And she loved him. Or was it love? Well, it didn't really matter. He had money to burn. And he was sweet, and wonderfully deferential. And generous as could be. After all, what else is there? It wasn't even as if he wasn't good looking. Why, Hollis Hart had simply everything!

A girl would be an awful fool if she couldn't love a man like that.

Ashareth's experiences had been rather limited. A certain fastidiousness had saved her from the promiscuous petting in which many girls indulge. But Monty had kissed her with a considerable degree of warmth and longing. And Jack Smythe had voiced his desires in no uncertain terms. There were, also, other men. They had not particularly impressed Ashareth.

Beautiful girls are usually sophisticated. Unless, of course, they are dumb. Aside from her own experiences, Ashareth's knowledge of the affairs of other girls—notably Sadie—had tended to acquaint her with the ways and thoughts of men.

For six days she and Hollis Hart had lived in a glamorous paradise. Her presence had stimulated and excited him. So that he had kissed her and made love. But further than that he had not gone. And tomorrow she was going home.

They were alone now in the dining room. Beyond the long windows lay the garden. Humming birds fluttered about the butterfly bushes. And a walled little breeze that had dallied among the lilies and stolen their fragrance came stealing through the room.

Hollis put his hand on Ashareth's. "Have you been happy?" he asked her.

And in his voice there was a hunger and a questing that made her heart rejoice.

"So happy," she said.

"Will you miss me?" he asked her.

She knew then that it was he would ask next—when she slipped her hand in his.

"Oh, I'll miss you fearfully," she told him. And pried her fingers beneath his and let them rest against his hot, hard palm. And they were soft and cool and lovely.

"Do you love me," he whispered "just a little, Orchid?"

"M-m-m," she murmured, so like a little frightened thing, that he had to lean to hear.

They were quite for a minute. And a mountain whistler, through the stillness, called his mate.

"Do you," she asked, "love me a little?"

Beneath her breath she asked it, with her chin on her shoulder and her dark hair against his mouth. So that his lips caressed the red flower she had pinned behind her ear.

"Oh, my dear," he cried. "My dear!"

A servant, padding softly on bare feet, came and filled their coffee cups. They ate in silence, tasting their food and pushing the plates away.

"Come," he said and drew her to her feet. "It is glorious in the garden now."

They wandered through a crumbling wall to a giant tree whose hollow trunk was cushioned with moss. Above their heads a cluster of orchid grew from a bough within their reach.

"This tree," he told her, "is the father of all trees. See, there is room enough within its trunk for two to sit and love."

He put his arm about her shoulders, and they passed into the gaunt embrace of the great tree. Gray moss, like the beards of patriarchs hung from its branches and swayed in the breeze.

"It's like a Druid," whispered Ashareth, and pressed against him.

He held her closely and ran his hand across her shoulders. In their satin jacket.

"Give me your lips," he whispered. "Just once."

And when he had kissed her he held her away, with his fingers gripping her arms so tightly that she winced.

"That is all I want," he said.

His voice was stern, as if he were trying to convince himself that it was the truth. He even repeated it. And his mouth tightened at the corners.

"That is all I want, Orchid. Only your lips, dear. Your lips—just once."

...

Ashareth's heart was beating madly. Throbbing in the hollow of her throat, where Monty used to press his kisses. Her eyes were wide and frightened. But she smiled with her red lips. And was, at once, filled with fear and rejoicing.

Because she knew that Hollis Hart had with his twisting, hungry mouth "Go put some clothes on!" he told her harshly. His voice was very rough. But that was because he was trying to keep it even.

She smiled again. And brushed his cheek with her lips.

"Once more," she whispered.

She put her arms about his neck and drew his mouth to hers.

His breath was hot on her face. And his blue eyes were flashing like Mona's. He bent fiercely and fastened his lips on hers. And she felt his teeth, hard and cruel.

She tried, impotently, to shake her head. He hurt, when he kissed like that. As she struggled he drew away.

"I never meant to kiss you like that," he told her. "For days I've been stealing myself against this."

"Why?" she asked.

He ground his heel into the soft ground. And put his feet apart and his hands in his pockets.

"Why?" she repeated innocently.

"My God!" he exclaimed. "Don't you know why?"

She shook her head helplessly. A strange breathlessness welled within her, filling her body and her throat, so that her breath came in little strangled gasps.

He looked at her steadily, until her face crimsoned, and she dropped her eyes.

"You know why," he said.

"Yes," she whispered.

"Then please," he besought her, "go get dressed!"

She laughed like a naughty child. "I haven't any clothes," she reminded him. "They're hanging on a hickory limb, or something. Hortense said so."

...

Hortense was a big, ebony landress. Ashareth left her clothes each night on the floor as she stepped out of them. Some time before she woke, Hortense washed and ironed them. But this morning there was a shower and Hortense had explained that little Missy must wait. Ashareth had no other clothes, and was in Hollis' pajamas and dressing gown through necessity.

"I'll put on your raincoat," she offered, "if this boudoir enemy bothers you."

"You'd better," he told her grimly. "I can't look at you in that outfit."

She secured her hat with a firm grip in the great coils of heavy hair that hugged her ears. And found the silk gown about her hips.

Hollis appraised her critically. "If Mr. Ziegfeld could see you now," he informed her, "there'd be a pajama brigade in the Hollis. Till slim girls with red flowers behind their ears."

She laughed delightedly.

"I always wanted to go on the stage," she confessed. "I suppose every girl does. I read a story once about a famous Hollis queen you know. It said that she was quite a poor girl who lived in Boston. She was a blonde and her husband wanted to have a picture of her in her wedding gown. But she was such a thrifty little thing she wouldn't let him spend the money. She said they'd buy some curtains for the kitchen, or some cutlery for the bedroom. Instead, it let her convey her to a studio, and when she heard him tell the photographer that they wanted the very cheapest picture they could get, she consented to have one taken."

"But when she wasn't listening her husband told the man to finish a great big beautiful one. And it was such a perfectly lovely picture that the photographer asked her husband's permission to submit it in some beauty contest. Helen almost had a fit because it cost so much money. She didn't feel any better when they told her she had won first prize either, because she was so furious with her husband for being extravagant. You see, she was absolutely crazy about him and she didn't care a bit about being famous or a beauty, or anything of the sort."

But her husband was so proud that he persuaded her to go to New York to accept the prize. He took her to the station and kissed her good-bye. And promised to water the plants and feed the cat, and everything.

And then all of a sudden Mr. Ziegfeld or someone saw Helen. And they offered her a great big contract. And everybody started calling her the most beautiful girl in the world. ...

And that, I suppose," interrupted

Hollis. "Was the end of the poor, adoring husband?"

"I guess so," answered Ashareth. "But what I started to say was—wasn't it just like a fairy tale? It was too bit of course—walking out on a loving husband! But just the same..."

Hollis interrupted. "I guess you're having a wonderful time and losing her—to be honest with all the other men in the world. Now if I should marry a beautiful girl—and another man admitted her worth in charms—do you know what I'd do?"

"Tell me, please!"

"No," he said. "What would you do?"

"Well," Hollis surveyed her alluringly. "Sunbathes in a hot tub. The black hair making it all the more like a bird's sleek wing. She keeps her dressing gown swathed about her hips, but the soft curves of her lovely body show tantalizingly through the slit of her pajama tunic."

HOME LAWS SHOULD BE EASY TO OBEY

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
The basis of all good discipline is reasonableness.
All law should be reasonable law and easy to obey.
But that does not say that the child is to be the judge of what is reasonable and what is not. Not by any means. It rests with the parent to decide about that.
For instance, suppose a mother says to a little boy, "You must not run out in the street. An automobile may run over you and kill you."
The boy may think the law unreasonable while the mother knows it is a proper and correct and easily obeyed law.
Now then suppose the little boy, deciding that the law is unreasonable, decides that he is justified in breaking it.
So when he sees his friend across the street over he goes.
TIME FOR DISCIPLINE
Here is where the discipline comes in. He has broken a law that his mother knows to be reasonable. She has never threatened him. She has simply told him he must obey and explained the reason why.
When he disobeys she tells him again, "Billy, you must not run across the street again. You understand, Billy. I say 'must not.' Automobiles running even very slowly cannot stop in time to save little boys. You know how badly Harry Smith was hurt. You wouldn't want to walk on crutches all your life like he does, would you? Or perhaps he killed altogether? Now you have disobeyed me and so you'll remember and not do it again. I'll put your scooter away for two days. After that if you think you can promise to obey me, I'll let you have it."
The next day, however, Billy, still thinking the law unreasonable, or rather not thinking about it at all, dives across the street again. A car just missed him.
Now then what? Billy's mother did just what I should have done. She gave Billy a good spanking on his spanking place. Little children must learn that there is backbone in the authority that governs them. They must learn that a command is a command.
It is not always necessary to explain to children exactly why they should obey you. They must learn to obey, that's all, and without question.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS—

The chief of detectives read slowly, like a man who believes he is intoning a death notice: "Female, aged 20 to 24; height 5 feet 3. Brown hair and eyes. Weight approximately 120 pounds. Dark blue silk dress, dark blue silk undergarments, pink jersey s; bloomers and shirt. Black lizardskin shoes, gun metal stockings. Wearing dark blue felt."
Bob sank weakly into a chair and stared up at Maguire, horror in his face. "It may not be her, Mr. Hathaway," said the detective. "This description would fit pretty nearly nine out of ten girls these days. You'd better come to the morgue with me to look at these bodies. If it isn't Miss Hathaway, we'll know where we're at, at any rate."
Cherry, who was bathing Faith's unconscious face with a dripping towel, looked from Bob to the detective pitiously. "But it says brown eyes! Crystal's are hazel!"
"Police description," Maguire interrupted brusquely.
"When was the drowned girl—I mean, how long had she been dead?" Bob managed to articulate.
"The medical examiner was at the morgue when I left," Maguire answered, "but I heard his preliminary opinion—about two days. Your cousin disappeared Monday afternoon and this is Wednesday morning. But you'd better come with me to the morgue. No use wasting time on conjecture."
"Call the doctor for Faith, Cherry," Bob directed, rising slowly from his chair, like a man, and only old and very tired. "Wait! She's coming!" Faith! Oh, honey! Everything's all right.

County Superintendent Sets Rules For Spanking

RIGHT — AND — WRONG
There's etiquette in spanking, too. Give the modern child the old-fashioned kind, Charles M. Fisher, Miami, Fla., school superintendent, tells his teachers. But—never spank on the legs, the hands or about the head, he cautions them. And best use a rubber strap, because it bends!

By NEA Service
MIAMI, FLA. — Miami school children no longer are going to be spoiled because the rod is spared.

The latest wrinkle in education, likely to raise the hair on the heads of all modern educators, is a set of instructions issued by the county superintendent of schools, Charles M. Fisher, on "How to Spank."

JUST LIKE GRANDSIRS
Young moderns, according to Fisher, are only slightly different from their grandsires. And what was good enough for grandfathers and efficacious for him, too—is good enough for the present generation. So Fisher outlines a course for teachers to apply to whip unruly children into shape.

"Punishment should be administered in kindness," Fisher begins his instructions, mindful of the old saw, "This hurts me more than it does you."

"Corporal punishment should neither be hasty nor improperly administered," he continues.

DELAY PUNISHMENT
To insure the former, Fisher says, "No spanking should occur until at least 24 hours have intervened since the misdeed."

To prevent the latter, he issues a long dictum with full instructions, excerpts from which follow:
"The teacher or principal should, when administering punishment, use only such an instrument as will produce no physical injury to the child.
"Never hit above the belt nor below the knees.
"Striking on the shins, knuckles and palms of the hand with ruler, is absolutely forbidden.
"Slapping about the face and head with the open hand or closed fist or

And as a warning against overuse of his own rules he adds, "In every case remember that 'He who rules his own spirit is greater than he that taketh a city.'"

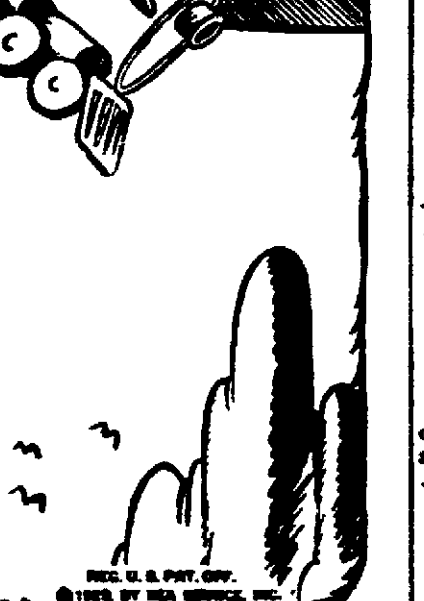

MUST CONSULT PARENTS
As a precaution, Fisher issues one final rule which says:
"Corporal punishment should be administered only after a conference with parents. Moreover, there should any instrument whatsoever is entirely out of the question.

"The correct place to spank is the seat. Not heavy blows, but quick, sharp ones are the best.

FAVORS RUBBER STRAP
"Never use a cat o' nine tails," Fisher warns, adding that the ideal instrument of punishment is a rubber strap, because it does not bruise or cut. A leather strap also is good.

Fisher insists that these rules come from years of experience with school children. He feels that an ounce of hard punishment is worth a ton of easy chastisement, not only for the person receiving it but for the example to the rest of the school. As proof he cites that in five years when he personally supervised the execution of approximately these same rules, only four culprits needed and got their dues.

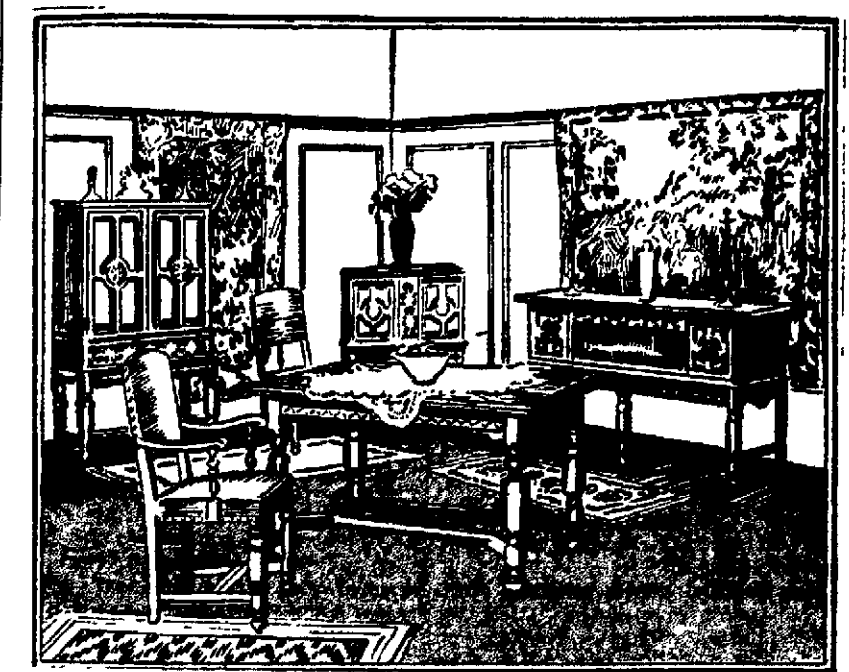

THE TINYMITES
By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY. THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

WELL, now I guess we're set to go and glow, I'll bet we'll travel slow," said Scouty. "Up, up, you go," the man exclaimed. "For starting things like this I'm fumed." And, sure enough, the engine "rose." It was a clever trick. "Oh, thanks a lot," one Tiny cried. "We know that we'll enjoy this ride. And soon they sailed right out of sight. The man was left behind. Said Scouty, 'My, I like his sort. He's treated us to flying sport. I hope we meet again some day, 'cause he is very kind.'"
Just at this moment came a thump and a clanging crier, "What did we bump?" They feared that they were due to fall and wondered where they'd land. But, though the engine stopped real still, the Tinies didn't take a spill. And then they saw that they were held in someone's great big hand.

Tudor Room Must Be Built On A Grand Scale

A Tudor dining room reflecting beauty and dignity.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the twelfth of a series of articles written for Post-Crescent and NEA Service by William H. Wilson, vice-president of the American Furniture Mart, and an acknowledged authority on interior decoration and period furniture.

BY WILLIAM H. WILSON
OAK, darkened by the smoke of feudal fireplaces, and worn eaten chestnut typify the Tudor period. To the person who has a fondness for hand-carved, masculine woods, such as the oak and chestnut, the oak paneled wall, dark rich tapestries, damasks and velvets, this period must have an irresistible appeal.

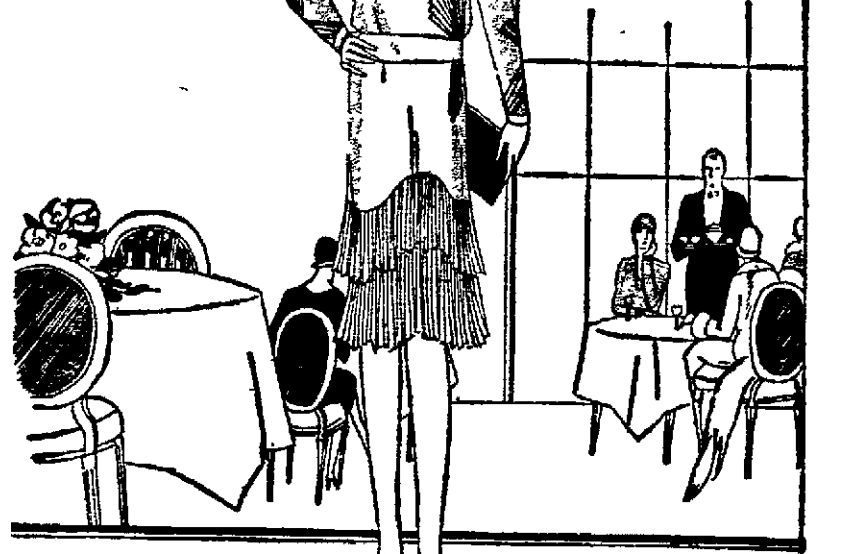

For the Tudor period, the home and rooms must be on the grand scale, for the darkness of the woods and decorations make it imperative that brightness predominate. The grandeur and dignity of the style would be overpowering if used in a small room.
Because in the days of Henry VIII, Queen Elizabeth and Shakespeare, furniture was confined to the absolutely essential pieces, the furniture in the Tudor hall is noted for its scarceness. A long, crudely constructed table flanked by a rude bench served for dining in the great halls, and the huge bed in the Lady's "bower," or bed chamber, was a ponderous throne-like affair. These pieces, with the dower chests, constituted the whole of the household furniture.

Today, the modern furniture manufacturer has eliminated the crudeness, the poor proportions, the grotesqueness, of the earlier pieces, and the modern Tudor room is a room of beauty, of rest and dignity. A new dark oak has appeared, which is available in modern reproductions of Tudor or Elizabethan furniture.

The modern manufacturer has also taken chestnut and adapted it to the period, so that the rich browns, soft in texture, dignify and make attractive all rooms in which they are used.

Let us repeat, large dimensions, vaulted ceilings, paneled walls and rich draperies are necessary in the Tudor room, to make it satisfactory, and this is why men's grill rooms and theaters are so attractive in this style, while in smaller spaces oak and chestnut would seem unwieldy.

WOMEN ARE RETARDED BY HOME MAKING

BY ALLENE SUMNER
"Easy divorce is of greater concern to women than to men. Women are tied to children as men never can be, and most women are badly handicapped for vocations other than home making after years of work in the home."

Just one paragraph from the long report recently made public by the committee on marriage and home of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.
Somehow it "clicks" a little more than many of the other paragraphs which only repeat all the too-muchness already said on this shaky-marriage business. It's not only men but women who, bearing of other women's economic progress, seem just to take it for granted all too often that the moment they, too, want a ray envelope in exchange for the life domestic, all they need do is apply. The fact that they are utterly untrained for the wage-earning world or that, even if once trained, their years of domesticity have dulled their blade, rarely seems to percolate till too late, and the divorce in hand, they wonder what next.

CLOTH BUTTONS
Button forms covered with the suit fabric are new, and quite a novel touch to many spring suits. Bound buttonholes are good, too.

Excellent nowadays is the ensemble that features brown and yellow in combination. Yellow blouses are especially good if they are decorated with polka dots that sprinkle orange or red among their brown dots.

MOTHER HAS NO TIME OFF FROM HER JOB

BY ALLENE SUMNER
Two small children, aged 2 and 4, were locked in the kitchen by their mother while she ran down on an errand to her sister-in-law's home four doors away. When the mother came home the house was ablaze and the children were found charred to death.

The woman is near death prostrated with grief and remorse and no doubt, censure not only from herself but from her husband. These aren't the first children maimed or killed because mama went away. But what's the answer? Why blame women workers in a system which gives them only constant day and night responsibility and no time off?

HOUSEHOLD HINTS
RAREBIT BEANS
A tasty supper or luncheon dish can be made by serving, upon thin slices of toast, hot string beans covered with rarebit sauce.

WHIPPED CREAM
Sometimes cream that is too thin for whipping can be whipped stiff after it is chilled thoroughly and the unbeaten white of an egg or a few drops of lemon juice has been added.

FILLING CREVICES
There is a liquid cement on the market now that is excellent for filling crevices around the bath tub or on the tiled floor. Putty fills in wood cracks and can be painted so it is perfectly concealed. Cracks absorb moisture so it is a sanitary measure to keep them filled.

HANGING MAT
Hang the bathroom mat high if you would keep the floor tidy. A good way to encourage the family in this habit, is to crochet two rings the mat's color, attach rings to corners of the mat and screw two hooks into the back of the bathroom door to hang it on.

NUTMEG APPLES
Grilled apples, flavored with nutmeg, are an excellent addition to a dinner dish of grilled ham, sausage, chop and bacon.

SANDWICH BUTTER
Work butter soft, as you do when baking a cake, to make thin sandwiches. To speed the process, add a few drops of hot water before working.

good dressers, there are always several suits featuring these.

There is undoubted swank about the cut of the double-breasted vest. It makes a stout man look slender and it makes a slender man look smart.

Brownweaves have grown very fond of the double-breasted vest. Hollywood "yes-yesses" the vogue. Gary Cooper, known as a good dresser, has many double-breasted, pleated trouser suits. One of his smartest is a black and gray striped suit with a three-button vest. The edges of the vest and of the entire suit are turned under with no stitching visible.

With this suit he wears a gray felt hat, white shirt with a pearl gray tie and spats to match his hat.

FILIBUSTER IS SEEN FOR SHIP BUILDING BILL

Proponents of Cruiser Measure Wonder if Delays Are Crafty Campaign

Washington—(P)—Senate leaders are beginning to wonder if all the time being consumed in debate these days is not an indirect filibuster, at least against the cruiser construction bill.

Far behind the regular schedule in disposition of the necessary appropriation bills, the senate is beginning to have a crowded calendar, although it has only the one major piece of legislation, the cruiser bill, still pending. A crafty filibuster admittedly could endanger this measure.

There are six weeks to go and the determination of President-Elect Hoover to have an extra session for farm relief and tariff revision has removed two of the biggest problems of the session from the calendar. But this development only seems to have increased the tactics of delay.

Saturday was set aside completely by the senate for consideration of the nomination of Roy O. West of Chicago, to be secretary of the interior, and there was no assurance even of a vote on it by nightfall.

HOUSE PUSHES AHEAD

The house with its more stringent rules of debate has gone along its customary business-like manner. It was in recess Saturday as leaders, after passage late Friday on the more than half a billion dollar fund for rearmament appropriation bill, were of the opinion that a day's rest would be indulged in.

Chairman Hale of the senate naval committee, is preparing to attempt to force longer daily session. He wants the senate to meet at 11 o'clock instead of noon each day. Friends of the cruiser construction bill also are beginning to think of the closure rule which limits debate. It requires a two-thirds vote to make this operative.

Republican Independents, led by Senator Norris of Nebraska, are ready to oppose the cruiser bill. The opposition camp also includes Senator King of Utah, and a number of other Democrats and has considerable strength, but the cruiser proponents insist they have the two-thirds required for a closure if such is necessary.

CAL HAS BREAKFASTS

President Coolidge is continuing his White House breakfast parties to senators which were begun last week when the Kellogg anti-war treaty, another of his favorite proposals before congress, was the bulk ahead in the senate legislative jam.

The treaty now, however, is out of the way.

But even after disposing of the case of Roy West, the senate still must vote on the deficiency appropriation and before this can be done the dispute over the proposed increase of $25,000,000 for prohibition enforcement must be settled. Provision of the bill, that to appropriate $75,000,000 for tax refunds, also is contested, and will require time for adjustment. Usually a deficiency bill is passed in about two hours.

The senate also has before it the conference reports on the interior and agriculture department bills and shortly will receive the war department and independent offices supply measures.

C. OF C. FINDS NEED FOR STENOGRAPHERS

That experienced stenographers are not easy to find in the city is indicated by a request which recently came to the chamber of commerce from an Appleton business concern. The request to the chamber was in the form of an inquiry as to where such help might be found.

Experienced stenographic help in the city is hard to find according to Kenneth Corbett, secretary of the chamber of commerce and requests similar to the one received recently are not unusual. There are numerous beginning stenographers in the city, Mr. Corbett reports, but experienced help is almost a rarity.

Books Of The Week

By W. E. McPHEETERS
Professor of English, Lawrence College

Book Is For Student Of Short Story

THE BEST SHORT STORIES OF 1928, edited by Edward J. O'Brien. Dodd, Mead and Company.

Each year since 1915 Edward J. O'Brien has edited a volume of what he calls the best short stories of the year. About one-third of his book is devoted to lists of such things as the best books of short stories during the year, short biographies of all the leading short-story writers, an index of short stories published in British and American magazines, with stars to indicate the best, second-best and so on. The other two-thirds of this 1928 volume is composed of twenty short stories taken from sixteen different magazines and representing the work of such well-known writers as Louis Bromfield, Dorothy Canfield, Irvin S. Cobb, Fannie Hurst, Dorothy Parker and Elizabeth Madox Roberts.

Such a collection as this will interest a student of the short story form more than it will a general reader. The stories naturally vary so in subject-matter, purpose and form that the average reader may find only three or four that will appeal to his taste.

POET COMING HERE PUBLISHES NEW BOOK

Lew Saret, Woodsman-poet who will give a lecture-recital at Peabody hall next Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Appleton Teachers association, has recently published his third book of poems, "Slow Smoke." The book is one of the best sellers, and an artistic achievement that is bringing to its author many triumphs.

This last book by the distinguished poet is redolent of the wild earth of America. It reveals great power and skill, deep tenderness, and a moving compassion for all the hurt creatures of the forest, for wounded, bewildered beasts, for frustrated, primitive human beings.

Gene Markey of New York writes of Saret: "He belongs to the great open spaces where men are poets. Part of each year he spends in the north woods and in the mountain forests of Montana and in the desert country. He has been a guide and a forest ranger, and they say that in camp in the wilds he can make a biscuit as easily as a ballad."

"Slow Smoke" is a volume of strong and shining poems. No mingling meters, but splendid, soaring songs. Here are poems that speak the grandeur of wild places and untamed creatures, and the with "Slow Smoke" Lew Saret takes his place in the first double-quartet of American poets.

KOHLER HUNCHES WRITTEN IN BILLS FOR LEGISLATURE

Legislative Committees Get Number of Important Measures

Madison—(P)—The second week of its session has brought before the Wisconsin legislature most of the questions with which the citizens of the commonwealth have recently been concerned.

The public utilities issue, a proposed increase in the state's gasoline tax, the prohibition problem, and the necessity for providing additional capital quarters for the state's officials and employees, all have their appearance on the floor of the two houses, and now are before committees which are the legislature's grist mills.

Mindful of the importance of the state of the dairy industry, the lawmakers' first positive legislative act was to call the commissioners of agriculture and markets to mediate the dispute between milk producers of the state and Chicago distributors.

RAP BLAINE

National and international questions also have received the session's attentions. Each house sent to committee a resolution commending the United States Senate for ratifying the Kellogg Peace treaty, and condemning Senator John Blaine for his long negative vote. An effort in the state senate to push the resolution through to immediate vote failed.

Many of the measures introduced embody recommendations contained in the biennial message of Gov. Walter J. Kohler. Among them are bills calling for the consolidation of numerous government commissions and departments and the assumption of the duties of many by a few. Creation of the post of budget director is one of the executive proposals which has been crystallized into a proposed law.

The public utilities issue, which gave promise of causing the most serious contest of the session, found expression in proposals in each house to deprive the state railroad commission of part of its regulatory authority over telephone, light and power companies. One senate bill would permit municipalities and co-operative districts to operate power plants in direct competition in existing private concerns.

GAS TAX BILLS

Measures dealing with an increased gasoline tax range from one which provides a 2-cent increase to another calling for a referendum in the spring to determine whether voters want an increase, and how much it should be.

The prohibition problem appeared in the form of a request for a referendum on the question of legalizing 2.5 per cent beer, and another calling for the repeal of the Severe Prohibition law.

A joint resolution asked for appointment of a committee from both houses to study the need for additional capital space, and to consider the advisability of buying the present Madison postoffice when it is abandoned for new quarters.

The senate showed a disposition to fish its business at an early date, voting to set Feb. 12 as the last date on which legislators may introduce measures. The assembly, however, declined to concur in the proposal.

An echo from the previous weeks sharp contest over the election of a speaker of the assembly came in the resignation of John W. Eber, Milwaukee, from the Assembly judicial committee. Speaker Charles W. Perry, Coconino, had appointed his defeated Progressive opponent, Alvin C. Reis, as committee chairman. Mr. Eber, who had sought Progressive support in the speakership, was appointed to serve on the same committee, but declined to do so.

There are counties in the United States, like transplanted areas of the dark continents, where 60 per cent of the population is illiterate.

Skaters Prepping For Post Crescent Races Sunday

MORE THAN 60 ARE ENTERED IN THE 18 RACES TO BE STAGED

Indications Are Weather and Ice Will Ideal for Big Event

WITH about 60 entries and 18 races in all, everything is ready for the seventh annual Post-Crescent skating races at Jones park beginning at 1:30 Sunday afternoon. The first race to get underway will be the junior boys 220 yard dash and the last will be the championship race for Post-Crescent.

There will be no numbers for contestants this year according to plans. Numerous late entries which prevented getting numbers ready brought about the decision that there will be none this year.

Contestants in the race are well enough known so that numbers will hardly be necessary and with only a few skaters to each heat there is little need for the figures.

The program for the races appears in another column of the sport page. It will be followed throughout the contest and it might be a good idea for contestants to clip the program and carry it with them during Sunday's contest. Additional copies of the program will be furnished at the post.

One of the feature attractions of the afternoon will be two figure skating exhibitions by Del Blissett, Oshkosh, well known as a figure skater in the valley. His first exhibition will follow the intermediate boys 440 yard dash finals, and the second the senior girls 220 yard dash. Competitors will be given a chance for an extra five or six minute rest.

While the list of officials for the races has not been decided on, the meet will be in the hands of men who have handled track meets and skating races in the valley before. Coach Joseph Shields of Appleton high school has been asked to do the announcing and probably will furnish a bit of entertainment in himself.

Spectators at the races will be asked to keep as far from the track as possible. Skaters, too, who are not participating in events will be asked to stay off the ice entirely to give others a chance. Races and names of contestants will be called by the announcer and skaters will be asked to assemble within the track so that each contest may follow the one before it without a hitch.

Indications are some of the fastest races in the city will be run in the junior and intermediate boys classes. The youngsters realize the field is wide open and more than one has been getting ready to carry home a couple Post-Crescent medals and perhaps a cup.

If weather conditions continue as they have the last few days there is no reason to believe the races will be postponed. Should that be necessary, announcement as to the new date will be made in the Post-Crescent on Monday.

KIMBERLY WALLOPS BEAR CREEK FIVE

Invaders Go Down to Defeat Under Flock of Baskets, 34 and 8

Kimberly—Down went Bear Creek and up went Kimberly when the former dropped a game to the high school squad here Friday night. The game was marked by poor passes and substitutions on the part of the invaders. Bear Creek seemed to be off when it came to finding the basket, or even the bounding board. They took many long and short shots but caged only 8 points to Kimberly's 34. The young Packer-masters played a fine passing and shooting game. Very few of their plays did not carry through.

During the first quarter it looked like the game was to be a close one, but during the second period the home boys made five consecutive baskets. The score was 13-8 at the end.

Bear Creek did nothing else but make a few more substitutions during the third quarter. While the Kimberly squad added six points to their lead, the invaders did not add one.

During the final quarter all of the substitutes for the Kimberly team were given a chance to play. The game ended 34-8 in Kimberly's favor.

In a preliminary the parochial school youngsters defeated those of the Kimberly public school 12-7.

RUBE WAGNER BARRED FROM U TRACK SQUAD

Madison—(P)—Because he competed in the annual East-West charity football game at San Francisco, Dec. 29, Rube Wagner, captain of Wisconsin's 1928 football team and a star weight man on the track squad, has been banned from our college athletic competition.

BADGERS READY FOR MINNESOTA TEAM AT MADISON

Gophers Boast Strong Team Although Beaten by Meanwell Five

Madison—Dave McMillan's Minnesota five will appear here Saturday night against the Badgers in an attempt to atone for a 29 to 21 defeat administered by Wisconsin in the Gophers' new field house on Jan. 5. Incidentally, the Minnesota cagers are out to shake the jinx that has kept them from winning a single Big Ten game thus far.

The third place Cardinal team rules the favorite of course, but the game will not be an easy one for the Meanwell tribe to take. Minnesota has shown great improvement in the past two weeks. The Gophers reached their season's peak a week ago when they forced Indiana to go overtime to win.

The McMillan style of play places a premium upon the close in shot. Using the professional type of fast passing offense all five players enter into the floor work. They do not shoot from long range. Every member of the Minnesota team is an accurate passer and the combination of a whole controls the ball most of the time.

In Capt. Ottensmeyer and Howde, the regular guards, McMillan has two clever dribblers who play consistently good defensive ball. The rangy Nelson, the Gopher center, is a valuable player under the basket, while the recruit forwards, Schoening, Engstrom and Hutchinson, are developing rapidly.

Wisconsin will probably send the same team on the floor that started against Indiana last Monday night. The three lanky offensive men, Tenhopen, Foster and Miller, give Meanwell a decided advantage in rebound work and tip-off plays. The reserve power at forward and center is also good, with Kowalczyk and Mathusen available.

Probable line-ups:

WISCONSIN	MINNESOTA
Foster	F. . . . . Schoening
Miller	F. . . . . Engstrom
Tenhopen	C. . . . . Nelson
Chmielewski	G. . . . . Ottensmeyer
Ellerman	G. . . . . Howde

Officials: Referee: Travnikov (Chicago) Umpire: Getchell (St. Thomas).

CANZONERI HANGS K. O. ON SANTIAGO

Wins After Being Beaten to Floor in First Round

Chicago—(P)—Tony Canzoneri of New York who recently was deposed as featherweight champion, today stood out as a principal threat to Tod Morgan's junior lightweight crown, following his knockout victory over Armando Santiago of Cuba.

Coming back after being pounded to the floor for a seven count in the first round, Canzoneri knocked out Santiago in the fifth round of their bout at the Coliseum Friday night. The victory stopped the sensational Canzoneri's record at 12-20 with 11 knockouts. He was defeated by Joey Sanger, in the same ring last December.

Promoter Jim Muller announced that Canzoneri and Sanger will meet here Feb. 6 with the winner virtually assured of a shot at Morgan's crown.

Marinette—Appleton high school won its third straight conference basketball game here Friday night when the Orange toppled Marinette high school five 22 and 16. Led by Berg, forward, the Appleton five counted nine field goals, the youngsters getting three, his running mate, Gochbauer, two, Schaefer, guard, two and Raftoff and Kunitz, one each.

The papermill city team showed well with the strong defense it was cracked up to have and held Marinette's sharpshooters to seven field goals, Johnston, Bauer, Prudhomme each getting two and Holz, guard one.

However, it was other games in the valley league which upset the long standing, East Green Bay beat Oshkosh 24 and 19 by starting the Sawdust city team with a couple field goals and then staying ahead of them.

West Green Bay continued to make itself a contender in the league despite early season predictions they wouldn't have much of a team up there, by beating Sheboygan 22 and 14. The game was the first played in West's new gymnasium.

Down at Fond du Lac, Manitowish high school had a scare thrown into it when Fondy took an early lead 17-0, but they came back to rally and stage a comeback. The final score was Manitowish 21, Fond du Lac 17.

TECH HALFBACK WON'T BECOME MOVIE STAR

Atlanta Ga., — Not many young men turn down an offer to go in the movies, especially when a nice fat contract is offered, but Warner Mizell, Georgia Tech halfback, may be one of them.

Mizell had a successful screen test made out in Hollywood on the recent trip there to play for Georgia Tech against California and was offered a contract by one of the big companies. They sought to have him stop school to go to work at once.

But Mizell was undecided. He has another year of football at Georgia Tech, besides—

"I don't know whether I'd like being in the movies," he says, "because I don't see where I am cut out for it. I might be happier in some other kind of work. You know, the movies offer sort of an abnormal life."

"I have time to think it over and I want to see what my parents say before I decide to do anything."

Brooklyn Club Needs New Outfield To Be Strong

Uncle Robbie Has Good Pitchers and a Fairly Good Infield

BY BRIAN BELL Associated Press Sports Writer
New York—(P)—President-Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn basketball club, must decide on a pitching staff and outfield, the rest of the lineup will take care of itself.

The infield is believed to be fairly well arranged with Del Bissonette at first, Jake Flowers taking care of second, Glenn Wright, the former Pirate, stationed at short, and Walter Gilbert assigned to third. This plan would leave Dave Bancroft, former Boston manager, in the role of utility infielder.

The outfield is not so simple. Max Carey will continue to act as first baseman to the manager, but probably will do little playing. Harvey Hendrick and Babe Herman can hit well enough to play on any team but in other years their fielding has left something to be desired. Robbie has definitely decided to abandon thought of having these two sluggers play the infield and they will stand or fall on their outfield performance.

Another outfielder brought over from last year is Rube Bressler. The three are numerically strong enough to fill the outposts if they can dispose of a small army of minor league outfielders trying to break in.

Two of the promising youngsters who are represented as ready for major league duty are Max Rosenfeld, purchased from Birmingham, him a utility player even if he fails and John Frederick, who comes by purchase from Memphis.

Frederick hit .356 in the Southern association: Rosenfeld's mark was .340. Billy Phil, who has been an infielder and outfielder in his day, is said to be a better hitter than fielder, but his hard clubbing and aggressiveness probably will win to crash into the regular lineup.

With Jess Petty gone to Pittsburgh for Wright, the honor of being the club's star southpaw must be contested by Big Jim Reliott and Watson Clark. There is no pitcher in sight threatening to wrest the right hand honors from Dazzy Vance.

Book Of Knowledge

"Men Of The South Pole"

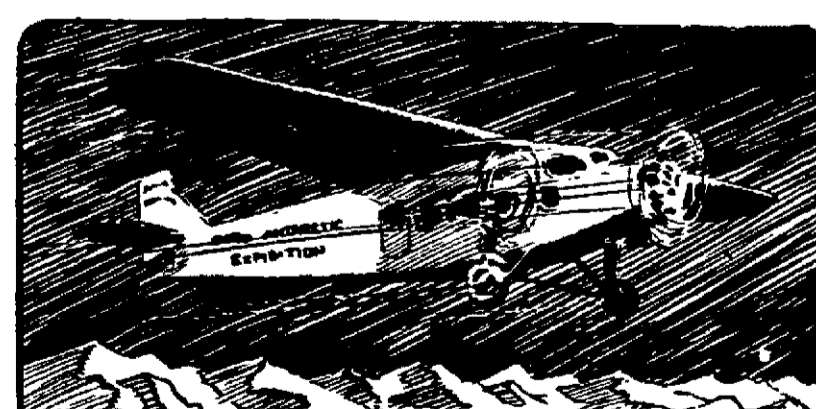

Few ventures into the Antarctic have had as complete and careful preparation as that of Commander Byrd. A big tri-motored monoplane, several smaller planes, two ships and supplies of food, clothing, fuel were assembled and transported to New Zealand, from which point Byrd headed for the Bay of Whales, in the Antarctic continent.

Eternal ice covers the bleak cliffs that ring this desolate bay. Byrd found a favorable spot and began building the "village" that was to be his base.

Portable houses were erected, and then dog teams were sent out to establish emergency bases at short intervals.

Byrd's task is both easier and more perilous than the tasks done by his predecessors. Easier, because he can travel infinitely faster than they could and can see much more country; and more perilous, because a forced landing in the icy wastes would probably prove fatal.

RED AND WHITE DROPS TILT TO CLINTONVILLE

Inability to Find Basket Regularly by Free Throws Costs Game

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—The local Red and White basketball team lost its second game of the season here Friday evening when Clintonville high school carried off a two-point victory. The final score was 17 to 15. The Orange and Black five had a slight edge throughout the contest. This was manifested chiefly in New London's inability to find the basket by free throws, a handicap which cost the locals the game. The Red and White gained seven points by this method, but missed ten other chances. Clintonville failed four out of nine times.
Pfeifer and Dayton were outstanding in the locals' attack, while Mantel and Marshak starred for Clintonville. An exceptionally large crowd was present and the hall was packed.
The first quarter ended with a 4 to 3 score, Clintonville having a one point lead. The visitors added three points in the second quarter, while New London tacked on two points. The Red and White tried a new overhand pass game, with varied effect.
With the substitution of Derrbach, Brown and Black by Coach Polonius, in an effort to halt the visitors' attack, the second half opened with a rush. The entire contest was a neck and neck affair.

Rotary Contest Prize Letter Lauds U. S. Aims

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—A plea for the policy expressed by the Monroe doctrine was suggested as the best international peace plan in the prize-winning letter written by Leo McNichols, a senior in the New London high school, in the contest sponsored by Rotary clubs of Wisconsin and upper Michigan. The letter was addressed to Lambert Hernandez, president of Mexico City Rotary club, Mexico City, Mexico. It follows in part:
"The United States has done three distinct things in maintaining peace with foreign countries. In the first place she has kept a peaceful attitude. She does not keep a large, warlike army or navy. We have a small, standing army, a than Germany. Failure to keep an aggressive military force prevents suspicions from other countries and maintains peaceful conditions.
"Second, my country has played an important role in restoring peace in warring countries of this hemisphere. The friendly intercession of the United States in the internal affairs of an independent republic has been fully justified in the peaceful outcome of the election in Nicaragua.
"Third, numerous able statesmen of the United States have worked for many years and have submitted various plans of bringing about world peace. The most recent one is the Kellogg Treaty to Outlaw War." With the cooperation of the many powers in the world this simple procedure will bring mankind's age long aspirations for universal peace nearer to practical fulfillment than ever before in the history of the world.
"Perhaps, being a citizen of Mexico, you ask, like other foreigners, why the United States is so in favor of peaceful conditions between countries of the world when she refuses to join the league of nations. Like every other loyal citizen of this country, I can answer that by showing how she is merely adhering to an age old policy of non-alliance, the Monroe doctrine. This policy of my country protects the other republics of the two Americas from European interference; it makes the United States the protectorate of these countries, among which your own Mexico is included.
"I am sure you will agree with me when I say that the United States has been very successful in carrying out her peace policies.
"She is eager to be on friendly terms with all foreign countries. But she is especially anxious to be on the most peaceful terms with her nearest neighbor, Mexico."

WOMEN'S CLUBS OF STATE OPPOSED TO FOOD LAW CHANGES

Organizations Also Do Not Favor Change in Law on Age of Consent for Girls

Manitowoc—(AP)—Mrs. J. A. Strathairn, Manitowoc, chairman of the department of legislation of the Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs, has announced the body definitely opposed the changes in two laws and favors five other measures.
Women's clubs of the state, she said, are opposed to any change in the pure food laws which will tend to lessen the protection now afforded to consumers and more particularly against legislation changing the law relating to labeling of baking powder.
The state group also opposes any change in the law on age of consent for girls.

The Newtown law, providing federal aid for matterly and infants care is endorsed by the state women's clubs as well as the LaFollette-Cooper bill, defeated at last session of the Congress, which urges reconsideration and passage of legislation through which health and education of Indians shall be provided through state and federal cooperation.

"The Federation heartily endorses the movement for improvement and development of state teachers colleges to the end that these shall have adequate facilities for making provisions for the professional degree for teachers," Mrs. Strathairn said. "To this end, the state organization approves efforts to increase appropriations for these institutions.
Backing of the Children's Code Committee recommendations is promised by the group, while endorsement of the amendment to the law relating to mothers' and widows' inheritances, known as the dower and distribution of estates bill, is supported, according to the legislative chairman.

STORM LASHED ISLAND IS CRUMBLING AWAY

Heligoland—(AP)—This little German island, English North Sea, until 1890, has lost 13,000 square meters swallowed up by mountainous waves when recent fierce gales caused havoc along the west European coasts as far as Norway.
The damage done here and to the neighboring East Frisian island chain has led the Prussian survey department to appoint a commission to make a scientific study of the whole coastline to ascertain if there is any dangerous acceleration in the gradual subsidence of the German North Sea shores. It is known that the whole coast is sinking, but only at the rate of about 10 inches in the past 100 years. Coming investigations are expected to show whether the sinking process calls for extra precautions.

Smoothness
Never Before Achieved in a Low-Priced Automobile
Of all the exceptional performance qualities resulting from the advanced design of the new Chevrolet Six, none is more impressive than its remarkably smooth operation.
Although the new six-cylinder motor develops 32% more power with higher speed and faster acceleration . . . although it delivers better than twenty miles to the gallon of gasoline——its outstanding feature of performance is a degree of smoothness never before achieved in any low-priced automobile.
Whether you are flashing away from a traffic stop with the accelerator to the floor, whether you are rolling along at twenty-five miles an hour or doing well above sixty on the open road—the power is delivered easily, freely and without annoying vibration.
To achieve such remarkable performance in a car of such low price, Chevrolet spent years in development work. Over 100 different engines were designed, built and subjected to over a million miles of testing at the General Motors Proving Ground before the present motor was adopted. The new power plant has many unusual features, such as the new acceleration pump, the new gasoline pump and filter, and the new automatic lubrication of the rocker arms.
The four-wheel brakes have been newly designed to assure positive, quiet action. Steering has been made easier. And the new Fisher bodies with their new lines, new colors, adjustable driver's seats and new appointments, represent new heights of style, distinction, comfort and outstanding value.
We extend you a cordial invitation to see and drive the new Chevrolet Six. We want you to know how finely the new Chevrolet Six is built and how smoothly it performs!
